Just two weeks until vote

Special Town Election, Dec. 6; Special Town Meeting, Dec. 10

By AMANDA GELDHOF

WILMINGTON - Wilmington residents will vote in an upcoming special election on Dec. 6 and a special town meeting on Dec. 10 to determine the future of the new high school building project in Wilmington.

Voter and new mom Virginia Partridge plans on voting in both the election and the town meeting.

"Being in the market for a new house, I will keep Wilmington at the top of my list if they build a new high school," Partridge said. "It [Wilmington] is an up and coming town, and it would cost too many resources to not have a new high school."

At the special election on Dec. 6th, voters will be deciding whether to approve the proposed debt exclusion for the project.

The debt exclusion is a 25-year long property tax increase that, according to Public Forum IV, presented on Oct. 13, 2011, would increase the average homeowner's annual tax bill by approximately $164. That figure is based on a single-family home valued at $357,000.

On Dec. 6th the special election simply needs a majority vote to pass Superintendent Joanne Benton said. All polling locations will open from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

On Dec. 10th at the special town meeting, voters will decide whether to appropriate the total project budget of $82.68 million according to the Project Scope and Budget Recommendation presented at the High School Building Committee meeting on Nov. 17th.

Special Town Meeting begins at 10:30 a.m. and requires a quorum of 150 voters to open.

Town Clerk Sharon George told the Crier that she hopes to have a quorum right away.

Part of the total budget, $1.13 million, was previously authorized for design and project management. So voters will decide if another $81.56 million should be spent on the new high school project.

The Town of Wilmington was approved on Wednesday, Nov.

16 to receive a grant from the Massachusetts School Building Authority (MSBA) in the amount of $37.99 million to put toward the project. The town would be responsible for providing an additional $44.19 million, which would be paid for by the temporary tax increase that voters will vote on at the special election on Dec. 6.

The special town meeting needs a two-thirds vote to pass, unlike the special election.

If either vote does not receive the number of votes needed to pass, there will be no new high school Benton said.

"If voters fail to approve this project, Wilmington loses all that grant money; loses its 'spot' in the MSBA grant process; and loses any chance of getting a state-of-the-art, 21st century high school for the foreseeable future," Benton said.

Benton is not worried about a lack of voter support for either the tax increase or the appropriation of funds.

"I am confident that we have identified the right project option for the town and that the residents will support a new high school," Benton said.

If voters approve the project, the town still has a long way to go before they can break ground on the demolition of the old high school.

Should voters approve, the district must provide the required verification to the MSBA, and only then can the district and the MSBA enter into a project funding agreement and submit the project budget into the MSBA's ProPay System.

After the town has the necessary funds, the district and its team must put the final touches on the design, create construction documentation, start the bidding process and award a construction contract.

Once the construction project begins, the MSBA will continue to monitor the entire process to assure the project remains within the limitations and expectations set forth in the Project Funding Agreement.

Two injured in crash

Street sweeper hit by car

By AMANDA GELDHOF

WILMINGTON - A motor vehicle accident involving a town street sweeper occurred Thursday afternoon at the corner of Main and Cross streets. Two were injured in the collision.

Officer Joe Harris investigated the accident and reported that a 2005 Toyota traveling on Cross St. toward Butters Row crashed into a 2008 Chevy sedan traveling south on Main St. The impact of the crash caused the Chevy to bump into the street sweeper vehicle.

Three ambulances arrived on the scene, however only the driver and a passenger of the Toyota were transported to Lahey Clinic with non life-threatening injuries.

Public Works Superintendent Don Onusseit said the street sweeper sustained very little damage: just a few scratches.

"Mechanically it [the street sweeper vehicle] is fine. It was out sweeping the next day," Onusseit said.

Police told the Crier that based on an investigation completed at the scene, the driver of the Toyota was determined at fault.

Maguire family accepts award

Governor gives prestigious Hanna award to fallen officer

BOSTON - Governor Deval Patrick and Lieutenant Governor Timothy Murray recently honored 27 law enforcement officers, including Woburn Officer John Maguire who was killed in the line of duty, at the Massachusetts State House during the annual awards ceremony named after Massachusetts State Trooper George L. Hanna.

Maguire was a Wilmington resident.

"In recognition of the courageous and selfless actions these heroes displayed, Massachusetts owes them a debt of gratitude," said Governor Patrick. "This award recognizes officers whose actions have demonstrated bravery above and beyond expectations and for that they are to be commended."

The 28th annual presentation of the Trooper George L. Hanna Memorial Awards for Bravery recognized 23 local police officers, three Massachusetts state troopers, and one federal agent. The honorees demonstrated a wide range of heroic actions to keep our communities safe and secure.

"Our Administration thanks all law enforcement officers for their hard work and dedication in protecting communities across the Commonwealth," said Lieutenant Governor Murray. "Today, we especially applaud the heroic officers praised for their extraordinary acts of courage, bravery, and service."

Governor Patrick and Lieutenant Governor Murray presented the Medal of Honor posthumously to Woburn police officer John B. Maguire, who was fatally shot last year as he rushed to a jewelry counter robbery at Kohl's Department Store. Officer Maguire's widow, children and brother accepted the award on his behalf.

"At the core of all of our brave law enforcement officers are the qualities of leadership, professionalism, selflessness and commitment," said Secretary of Public Safety and Security Mary Beth Heffernan. "But our winners here today have separated themselves by taking the extra step, going above and beyond the call of duty to serve, save and protect the public safety."

Trooper George L. Hanna had been a member of the State Police for nearly 10 years when, on the night of February 26, 1983, he was fatally shot by three

Reducing road salt runoff

WILMINGTON - With elevated salt levels in the water supply and an icy winter on the way, town officials shared plans to make the roads safer and the water less salty at the Board of Selectmen meeting last week.

Don Onusseit, the Superintendent of the Department of Public Works, Michael Woods, the Water and Sewer Superintendent, and Shelley Newhouse, the Health Director presented the plan to reduce road salt.

"Recognizing the adverse affect salt has had on our water supply, we felt it was necessary to look at our own operation," said Onusseit, adding that officials "took a look at what we were doing, and we felt we could improve

High school face off

Finance committee hears both sides

By AMANDA GELDHOF

WILMINGTON - Two opposing articles regarding the new high school were brought before the Wilmington Finance Committee at a meeting on Monday but the committee did not report a final decision regarding the matters.

The Board of Selectmen, School Committee and High School Building Committee presented Article 1 in favor of the Town to obtain funding to build a new high school.

Kevin MacDonald presented Article 6, which seeks to preserve the cur-

Superintendent of Schools Joanne Benton made the opening remarks in support of Article 1.

"The Wilmington High School building project is significant to each and every resident of the Town of Wilmington, this project is more than a school building; it is the development of a major, long term town asset. The decisions to be made will affect young people's lives for generations to come," Benton said.

Service flags represent pride

Blue and Gold Star Flags show sacrifice of military, families

WILMINGTON - Simple, yet special star flags are displayed in the windows of houses here and there around town. They have a white background with a red border highlighting a centered star. Perhaps there is more than one star.

Even though they are somewhat plain in appearance, these flags have a very significant message. They mean that this home has a family member in the military and serving in harm's way. Each star represents one son or daughter, so there may be more than one star on a flag.

Today most likely the military member is deployed to Afghanistan or Iraq in the war against terrorism, but when the flags were originally used, the sons and daughters were in Europe. In World War I, Army Capt. Robert L. Queissner of the 5th Ohio Infantry designed the first flag. In 1917, he had two sons serving on the front line. He used the flag to honor them, to show pride in their service, and as a symbol of hope for their safe return.

The idea spread quickly, and very soon the flag was receiving more official endorsements. For example, the Ohio Congressional record from September 24, 1917 reads,

"... The mayor of Cleveland, the Chamber of Commerce and the governor of Ohio have adopted this service flag. The world should know of those who give so much for liberty. The dearest thing in all the world to a father and mother -- their children."

Queissner's flag had two blue stars representing his two sons. That is how the original flags were designed, using blue stars so the flags reflected our nation's colors--red, white, and blue. Unfortunately as WWI progressed, families dealt with the harsh reality that many would not return home. To more, nationwide organizations grew out of their use. Army Capt. George H. Maines is credited with the creation of The Blue Star Mother's of America in 1942. And the American Gold Star Mothers, Inc. report their first meeting was held in 1928.

There is also an official United States Services Flag that has flown over the U.S. Capital every November 11th since 1926. It resembles the star flags, and it is a tribute to WWI in particular. At the top is a blue star signifying the 4,695,039 Americans who served in WWI. At the bottom is a gold star remembering the 60,672 Americans who died in that war.

Use of the flags declined throughout the Korean War and the Vietnam conflict. But there is now a resurgence of this meaningful American tradition of displaying a star flag when a family member deploys to a combat zone. Printable versions of the flags are even available on line at web sites such as www.homeoffheroes.com.

honor those who made the ultimate sacrifice in the name of freedom, the flags remained in the windows, but the blue stars were covered by gold ones.

World War II would see the continued use of these blue and gold star flags. What's Star flags were created in World War I to honor the military. Homes displayed the flags to show a family member was serving in Europe. Today the tradition is being revived to provide symbols of hope and remembrance for our armed forces serving in the war on terrorism. A blue star means the member is currently deployed. A gold star reflects a loss of life in service to our country.

our operation."

The proposal will take the current mix used to treat wintery streets and replace it with a more environmentally-friendly compound.

"We think we can reduce our salt we put on the road," said Onusseit.

Officials also aim to reduce sanding, as it has lead to messy streets and dirty water systems.

"We don't find that it's very effective in most circumstances," added Onusseit.

Regarding salt, seventy percent of the problems come from the state highways. Salt can trickle into water supplies, and that can affect public health. Elevated sodium levels can lead to heart disease, which Newhouse noted is "the number-one killer."

Wilmington residents on low or no-salt diets should avoid consuming which has elevated sodium levels, should avoid consuming such water without first filtering it.

Treating this issue, however, isn't straightforward.

"Unfortunately, there's no easy way to remove sodium from the water," said Woods, without incurring substantial costs.

Panera Bread

Panera Bread is officially on its way to Wilmington.

Dean Roberts, Panera's District Manager, and Burt Courtemanche, the General Manager of the Wilmington store spoke to the Board of Selectmen at the meeting on Monday to detail their plans. The café should be open between December 20th and 27th. The café, they said, will have outside dining tables, along with other Panera amenities.

The Board granted them a license that will remain valid through the rest of the year.

During the public comments section of the meeting, Kevin MacDonald, armed with an egg timer that was meant to keep track of the newly instated five-minute rule, rose to denounce the high school project, but again did so in an extremely disruptive manner. During his remarks, he presented typed questions to the Board, as well as Town Manager Michael Caira. He was eventually escorted out of the meeting by police after he refused to quiet down.

Selectman Michael Newhouse said that MacDonald's comments, which he claims are protected by freedom-of-speech, amount to nothing more than harassment.

TAXPAYER IDENTITY THEFT

We've recently begun hearing about tax identity theft. It's still pretty rare, and the Internal Revenue Service is taking steps to deal with it.

In refund fraud, a thief steals a taxpayer's Social Security number and uses it to file a forged return -- usually early -- in hopes of getting the taxpayer's refund. By the time the real taxpayer files, the IRS delays a refund until the issue is sorted out.

Employment ID theft involves using a stolen SSN to get a job. The employer reports the thief's wages under the stolen name and number; when the true taxpayer files his or her own return, the IRS will question why the other wages have not been reported.

The IRS has created identity theft markers for the accounts of victimized taxpayers to alert IRS personnel to the ID theft. New this year: Identity Protection Personal Identity Numbers (IP PIN) for those persons to use on their returns. They also warn about fraud schemes and "Phishing" sites posing as the IRS.

Best wishes for a happy Thanksgiving from your friends at

Youth soccer appeals for more field space

By JON BISHOP

WILMINGTON - On Tuesday, Wilmington Youth Soccer Association (WYSA), which is Massachusetts's second-largest youth soccer organization, held its year-end meeting at the Middle School in order to elect new members to its board of directors and discuss business. Among the topics of discussion: field space and the TOPSoccer program.

Currently, WYSA utilizes municipal fields at Shawsheen, Whitefield, Woburn Street, and private fields at corporations Textron and Agfa. But, in the spring, that list will shrink to just three: Shawsheen, Whitefield, and Textron.

"We have field constraints in Wilmington," said Ed Rikestins, the president of WYSA.

Rikestins told attendees that he hopes that Wilmington's high school project will provide the proper space.

"It's very obvious to me that the turf fields at the high school are a good first start," he said.

Town Manager Michael Caira, who spoke at the meeting, said the town is concerned with the turf situation. He said that he had discussion with Ed Harrison, Wilmington's Athletic Director and Superintendent Joanne Benton about the issue.

"The folks at Youth Soccer have really committed themselves to the community," said Caira adding that steps have been undertaken to improve fields, and most have shown results. The Shawsheen and Woburn Street fields, however, have lagged, mostly due to overuse.

"We're not able to rest them," said Caira.

The town will seek alternative fields—one of which, as mentioned, would be at the proposed high school.

"The importance of the school is not the field," he said, noting the need for 21st education in Wilmington. The school does, however, provide for other opportunities—like its use by sports organizations like the WYSA.

"That's why it's important that we have [the fields] as part of our high school project," said Caira.

In addition to two on the High School property, there will be an additional adjacent field located on Wildwood Street.

The town also must plan around various regulatory constraints—once fields reach certain sizes, towns must provide adequate bathroom space and handicap access, among other requirements.

In the meantime, Caira said Wilmington will explore any opportunity to acquire land that could be used for public fields. The recent grant of free cash reserves, which total around $9.5 million, could assist in potential purchases.

Later in the meeting, Ed Celli, who runs the Wilmington branch of the TOPSoccer program, was honored for his hard work, dedication, and heart. Recently he received the United States Youth Soccer TOPSoccer Buddy of the Year award. The program allows children with special needs to participate in the sport and provides them with a fun and nurturing atmosphere. Wilmington has one of the larger TOPSoccer programs.

Children who participate in the program assisted in the ceremony. Celli, moved by the reception, called Wilmington a great community.

Holiday Sale at the Wildcat's Den

All Wilmington residents invited.

WILMINGTON - There is a new store in town, and it is being almost completely run by teenagers. The Wildcat Den, situated right next to the high school cafeteria, is an operational business. Its employees are hired from marketing and accounting classes and work as cashiers or managers, for a grade of course.

Currently students are learning to take what they have studied in class and apply it to a real world setting. In Marketing, students are planning and executing a massive holiday sale campaign under guidance from their teacher, Mrs. Krista Anderson. She is excited by the prospect of the students guiding themselves through the sales process to make the venture successful. "It's wonderful to the students creating and developing marketing and business ideas for the store. They learn so much more through real experience than learning from a textbook." Accounting students are calculating what is made from the sale, the costs and most importantly, the profit.

Students researched the best products to sell, ways to get the word out, and the most economical way to get the products to customers. Now this plan, weeks in the making, is ready to hit the community of Wilmington. Flyers will be sent out to students in other schools, advertisements will be put on the website, and more will be seen around town. Products include scarves, mugs and umbrellas with plenty of paw prints and Wilmington spirit. The profits from this holiday sale go to the Life Skills DECA program, and depending on what they bring in, some will go back to the students orchestrating this themselves as a reward for their hard work. If someone is looking for a gift that a Wilmington resident would use everyday, these items are just it, and will help out some students in the process.

This project may seem like the lunatics are running the asylum, but these lunatics are efficient, creative, and professional, using their school skills to run a real world sales campaign and they haven't even graduated yet.

The store's huge holiday sale ends December 2nd. Based on customers' preference, products can be shipped to recipients or picked up during the week of December 19th at the High School. The product catalog and an order form can be found on the Wilmington Public Schools website or wilmington.k12.ma.us.

Letters to the editor

From: The Editors Desk

by Jayne W. Miller

Giving Thanks

This week the Crier has hidden a turkey on every page of the news section in an effort not only to engage children more with the printed word, but also to give parents a short break while digesting their Thanksgiving feast and planning their weekend shopping. "Here kids, go find the turkeys..."

I heard an interesting description of the holiday season, the Christmas season, last weekend I thought was probably one of the best comments I've heard in a long time... that it's a "Monstrous Façade of Plenty."

The Black Friday retail bacchanalia is designed just so that Americans can present that façade to the world. The desire for material goods lead us inexorably to Wal-Mart /Target/Best Buy Friday morning for the killer deal, the loss leader, the ability to fill up the empty space beneath that tree or inside that children with all this consumerism? Looking at our society at large, we see that we are a borrowing nation, with high deficits, debt to income ratios. China owns more of our notes than any other nation. We don't make anything anymore. Our elected leaders in Washington could not even trim a trillion dollars over ten years from the federal budget, during which period the budget would spend $40 to $50 trillion. These men (well, the committee of 12 had just one woman - Patty Murray of Washington state) didn't so much as admit failure as roll over and expose the soft belly of entitlement and pettiness.

But I digress. This season, I will endeavor to enjoy the experiences more with my family. Trudging out into the field and cutting the tree ourselves. Stringing some popcorn for the conifer strangely propped in the corner of the living room.

Creating some paper chains with wishes and thanksgivings written on them.

tations from family, friends, or nosy neighbors.

I confess, I really like to go, too.

Sometimes I find a really great deal. Usually, though, the loss leaders (those products companies take a loss on to attract folks in the door) are shadows of their regularly priced selves, witness the camera I bought last year made of cheaper materials that refused to properly focus.

Looking at the digital flyers flooding my inbox, distracting me away from laying out these newspapers, I'm astounded. Open at 10 p.m. Thanksgiving, but they don't say Thanksgiving, they say Thursday. Friday at 12 a.m. Isn't that midnight, on Thanksgiving? Now there are too many options for me to keep track, too many deals and places and times and events. Heck, I don't even know what I want to buy yet.

What are we teaching our every link. I also will engage my children more in the gift giving of the season, having them choose the items we donate to the needy. I also plan to drive them nuts with my ever-expanding library of seasonally appropriate music.

As busy people it's the moments we share together that we'll remember later in life, those traditions we want to see continued in our children and grandchildren, not the $3 trinket at the bottom of a stocking.

Take time to appreciate blessings big and small in your life Thursday. Maybe you are thankful to be able to feed and clothe your family. Perhaps you are thankful for a second chance at something that matters to you. Maybe it's family, a pet, a football game, a friend, a TV show. Or just a hidden turkey.

Happy Thanksgiving.

Staying healthy this winter

Dear Editor,
Think of how many times each day that you touch an object; whether it's in your own home, at the supermarket, bank ATM, gas station, elevator buttons, door knobs, or at any store. We are constantly touching things, and how often are we actually washing our hands? Most people wash their hands after they use the restroom, and some people wash their hands when they sneeze and before they eat. Now think back to all of the objects that you have touched during the day, and then you sit down to eat your dinner. It is easy to see how people get sick frequently; especially during periods of the year when we are most at risk.

Flu season ranges every year, but for the most part it strikes from October until April; with February usually being the most prevalent. The best ways to prevent yourself from getting the flu is by washing your hands frequently, and by receiving the influenza vaccine. Some people are at greater risk of contracting the flu; such as children, the elderly population and pregnant women.

The flu is contagious, so it is important to take precautions to avoid the risk of spreading it. These include; hand-washing, covering your mouth when you sneeze or cough, and by not sharing utensils if you are sick. Some people know that you should cover your mouth when you sneeze. However, it is the way you cover your mouth that is the important part. If you cover your mouth with your hand and then touch something, that does not do much good. Therefore, when you cover your mouth you should bring your arm up to your mouth and sneeze into the corner of your arm, where your elbow is. This allows you to cover your mouth, without getting anything on your hands. The same goes for coughing. Once you begin to use this method, you will become accustomed to it and prevent the spread of infections.

With these simple techniques, we can try our best to keep the infection rate low, and ourselves healthy throughout the winter!

Flu Prevention Tips

Dear Editor,
With winter rapidly approaching many people may be starting to worry about the big bad flu. It can be lurking on any surface or on any hand you meet. It waits for the perfect opportunity to invade your body; never failing to rear its head on a week where you have to study for final exams or prepare for that big meeting at work. Once contracted, the flu will have you down and out for three to five days with a fever, chills, a cough, a runny nose, a headache, body aches, and fatigue. Sounds like fun right? Probably not, so why not take the necessary steps to protect yourself and your loved ones from the flu?

The best way to arm yourself and the people you love from the flu is to get the flu vaccination. A lot of people may be hesitant receive this vaccination because they are under the popular belief that they will get sick with the flu shortly after receiving the injection. This belief is not true. The flu vaccination does not contain the live virus and therefore cannot make you sick. It is recommended that everyone over the age of six months should receive the vaccination. However, if this still does not convince you to get a flu shot, there are other ways that you can protect yourself, although they are not guaranteed to prevent you from getting sick or spreading the flu to others. These prevention measures include: covering your mouth and nose when you cough or sneeze, washing your hands frequently with soap and water or using an alcohol-based hand sanitizer. Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth, contact with sick people, and stay home from work and school for 24 hours after you have a fever. Remember, prevention is the best protection this flu season!

Thank you,

A better plan to educate and conserve

Dear Editor,
At this point, I think it is pretty safe to say that most would agree that people educate, not buildings. But for those who just want a new building, no matter that there is a better plan out there and it is to buy the farm. This assertion that the property owners are not interested is neither here nor there. Sciarappa's is a Chapter 61A property, meaning they have enjoyed an agricultural tax break for decades. The deal is that because of the tax break the town gets the right of first refusal when the property is sold. The farm has been on the slate to be sold in past years, then the economy tanked. The Town has already made a significant investment into this property. The Town could also take the land as an eminent domain taking like it did for the Wildwood properties that is now being used to some degree for the proposed new high school. So whether or not the farm is up for sale right now is a moot point. If the Town wants it the Town has the right to buy it.

What is not moot; what a waste of tax dollars it is to tear down that perfectly good building that could be used as a Town Hall (another future need) if the new High School was moved to the farm. The reimbursement rate for a model school would practically pay for the farm. The oil spill (which is an issue no matter what anyone says!) would not be a concern. We would never want for any field space again if we bought the farm; we could actually have a nice park for the people like all the other towns and there would be no impact or elimination of the 4th of July activities. The Wildwood properties could be used for the cemetery that is running out of space and we could eliminate the added cost of a sewer main down Church Street (another cost savings). I suspect that sewer main is probably the driving force behind shoehorning the new high school on this property to bring sewer (via the taxpayer vs. the private developer) closer to North Wilmington to develop the heck out of it. It always comes down to following the money.

Just for the record, so no one can say they did not know, if the Town impacts the water resources (the Vernal Pool and the Ipswich River/Mill Brook) anymore than it already has for the new high school, I and others watching this project, will exercise our rights under the appeal process of the Wetland Protection Act to protect them. The location of the new building is right on the edge of a certified Vernal Pool and the river runs along the backside of the football field. Our water resources should not be impacted in any way just because the Town wants to go forward with a bad plan and shoehorn this building on this site.

From one recent alum to another: Vote YES

Dear Editor,
To all my fellow recent WHS alumni who are home from college or grad school for Thanksgiving break: please know that YOU can have a say in the future of Wilmington High School. After all, no one knows the need for a new high school more than you. While things have changed greatly in our lives since graduation, much less has changed at Wilmington High School. On a lighter note, Mr. Megysey still has his mustache; Ms. Peters still seemingly lives at the school; Mr. Kleponis is still, well, Mr. Kleponis; and the cafeteria chicken nuggets are still as popular as ever.

More seriously, however, is the harsh reality that the current building is still in desperate need of replacement. I encourage you all to show some Wildcat Pride and vote YES for a NEW WHS!

Over-the-counter absentee voting is happening NOW at Town Hall. Make sure to visit the Town Clerk's Office - open 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. - this Wednesday or Friday. Additionally, any recent alumni currently serving in the military - or any alumni residing at school who were unable to stop by Town Hall this week - can contact the Town Clerk's Office (978-658-2030) to learn about absentee voting through the mail. Absentee ballots must be received by Tuesday, December 6, so act fast!

(Any recent alumni still living year-round in Wilmington are reminded to vote YES at the Special Town Election on Tuesday, December 6, and at the Special Town Meeting on Tuesday, December 10, at 10:30 a.m. in the high school gymnasium.)

You certainly don't need to be convinced of the need, but you may be wondering why a new school is being proposed today? With Wilmington's highest bond rating in history, a favorable construction bidding environment, an extremely low anticipated 3.20% interest rate, all long term debt associated with past building projects paid in full, and - most importantly - nearly $38 million in state grant money guaranteed specifically for THIS proposal, now is clearly the time to provide a 21st century learning environment for the future generations of WHS students following in your footsteps. When you return to college (and I'm sure doing nothing but going to class, studying, and visiting the library), know that - back in Wilmington - axes are a grindin'; kitchen sinks are a flyin'; and misinformation has hit the fan. Your absentee votes - whether over-the-counter or through-the-mail - will truly make a difference.

Sincerely,
Robert Hayes

Renovation: a costly option

To the Editor,
I wanted to address skepticism expressed by some opposed to building a new high school with regard to the fact that renovating the existing building would cost the same, if not more, than building a new high school.

The Massachusetts School Building Authority (MSBA) is very concerned about cost effectiveness on projects they are asked to fund. In fact, every new construction project that is submitted to MSBA for its review and approval must be accompanied by an addition/renovation option. In Wilmington's case, the Town conducted a full evaluation and cost estimate for the option to add onto and renovate the existing building. The fact is that it would cost $335 per sq. ft. to renovate and expand the existing building, compared to $326 per sq. ft. for new construction.

Some of the more significant areas of cost related to renovating and expanding the existing high school include the following:

- While the existing building is "sturdy" in terms of gravity loads, and the shell of the building would remain, there is no lateral resistance and major upgrades would be needed to meet current structural building codes.

- Accessibility laws would require replacing all bathrooms, installing numerous ramps and re-grading of the floor in the auditorium, as well as other areas in the building.

- The entire building would have to be retrofitted with a sprinkler system.

- The Town would incur incrementally increased costs to remediate oil contaminated soils located under the existing building because renovated classrooms would be located above the contaminated area. By contrast, these soils will be located under a parking lot, which is a less costly area to remediate.

- The addition/renovation option would require several phases of construction in order to accommodate continued use of the building during construction. These phases would take 18 months longer to complete and, as the old saying goes, "Time is money."

Of course, not every decision is driven solely by cost. Other aspects of the renovation/addition scenario that have been considered by the Town include the following:

- The renovation alternative would require moving the Roman House. The Roman House will not be touched in the new construction proposal.

- Teaching students in portable classrooms during renovation would be costly and detrimental to the educational process.

- There would be significant disruption of school activities due to construction phasing.

I respect every individual's right to oppose the new high school proposal and advocate for their position. However, I am disappointed in some opponents' willingness to play fast and loose with the facts and make bogus claims. The residents of Wilmington deserve to have the facts when making their decision on a new high school, and I appreciate the media's efforts to hold both sides of this debate accountable.

Vote YES and keep WHS in the perfect location

Dear Editor,
Wilmington High School belongs in the Town Common area. Period. Based on my conversations with folks, but more importantly, based on the public feedback received by the High School Building Committee after studying more than a dozen site options, residents overwhelmingly support Wilmington High School remaining at its current location. Make no mistake about it. The school's current location is ideal - in the "center" of town; on the Town Common; near the Library, Senior Center, 4th of July Building, and Arts Council Building; in the Centre Village Historic District; and just seconds from the Public Safety Building. Furthermore, a new school will not bring with it any surprises relative to parking, busing, or traffic flow. Finally, for as long as high school students have been formally educated in Wilmington, the Town Common area has been home to the high school. Prior to 1888, high school classes were taught in the old Town Hall (now the Arts Council Building). Between 1888 and 1914, high school classes were taught at the "New Center School," which was located next to the "Old Center School" (now the Fourth of July Building). Between 1914 and 1950, high school classes were held at the former Swain School. Since 1950, high school classes have been held in the current facility, now a 61-year old tired, outdated building with five subsequent renovations.

A suggestion has even been made to turn the high school into an office building. Can you imagine that? Wilmington High School is synonymous with the Town Common for a reason. Leave the high school where it belongs. For that reason, and many more reasons articulated in past letters to the editor and advocated by the project's proponents, I urge everyone to vote YES for a NEW WHS on Tuesday, December 6 and Saturday, December 10.

Sincerely,
Manny Mulas

Letters to the editor

Before judging, consider the source

Dear Editor:

As a volunteer member of the High School Building Committee for more than a year now, I have only recently become actively involved with Wilmington's town government. The experience has been terrific. I feel privileged to serve with fellow volunteers and town officials alike, all of whom I have found to be capable, deliberate, open minded and committed to the task at hand. The only disappointing aspect of being involved in this process has been learning the extent to which a few individuals are willing to distort the facts, in a shameless attempt to curry favor with the voters of Wilmington. Regardless of what one's position is regarding the High School referendum question on December 6th, residents deserve to make decisions based on the facts, NOT innuendo, half-truths, or outright lies.

With a background in public procurement and contract administration, it is my opinion, based on previous experience that engaging a Construction Manager at Risk, versus a conventional General Contractor, has been one of the best decisions that the High School Building Committee has made during the past year and a half. The CM at Risk model has been used successfully in the private sector for many years.

Fortunately, by passing the 2004 Public Construction Reform Act, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts recognized that the CM at Risk process can save considerable time and monies for cities and towns.

Fundamentally, the CM at Risk is a contract partner with the Town, and a General Contractor is not. The General Contractor's primary objective is to make as much money as possible by delivering the product as cheaply as possible. Because of this simple fact, too often General Contractors intentionally submit "low ball" bids to lock down a contract, and then constantly fight to get paid more money by way of change orders and purported modifications. On the other hand, the primary objective of the Construction Manager is to deliver the highest quality product, on time and on budget. When all is said and done on the project, the CM at Risk has a contractual obligation to deliver the project under a Guaranteed Maximum Price. So, while the General Contractor makes more money by submitting more change orders, the CM has to eat the cost of change orders and overruns, if the project doesn't come in on budget.

The bottom line is that the General Contractor's only fiduciary obligation is to its own shareholders, so a GC is allowed to hide all of its costs, overhead, subcontractor bids and profits from the Town. In contrast, there are no secrets between the Town and the CM, because the Construction Manager is exclusively responsible to the Town, so the CM is legally and contractually obligated to share ALL cost information with the Town.

Most recently, I have heard a very disturbing mistruth about Wilmington's Construction Manager at Risk contract as being a "No Bid Contract". Nothing could be further from the truth. After deciding to proceed with a CM at Risk model, in accordance with state law, the Town publically solicited a standard Request for Contractor Pre-Qualification followed by a Request for Proposals, from which an impressive list of contractors was generated. The HSBC then conducted a rigorous interview process of three highly qualified firms, of which one was selected due to its ability to meet or exceed the set criteria. If you are a skeptic, check out the Massachusetts Inspector General's website, reflecting that in August 2011, the Wilmington High School Project became the latest in a plethora of public construction contracts (mostly schools) that have used this CM at Risk model. Anyone who claims that the Town did not follow a competitive bid process is either grossly misinformed or intentionally misleading. If someone tells you that the Town has a "No Bid Contract", please consider the source.

I have just one more very important point for Wilmington residents. CM at Risk contracts have become so widely recognized as the most cost and time efficient way to deliver construction planning, estimating, scheduling and management services, that the MSBA has credited the Town of Wilmington an extra 1% of its Total Eligible Project Costs (beyond the base reimbursement rate), and added it to the state grant award. In effect, the Town has received an extra $688,408 to use the CM at Risk contract model, which saves the Town money even WITHOUT taking the additional reimbursement into account. Given the facts, the decision to engage a CM at Risk truly qualifies as a "no brainer".

I hope this information is helpful. This is too important for Wilmington not to have its citizens base their decision on facts. Thank you for your consideration.

Your Two Cents...

Thumbs up to all of the town officials who continue to handle difficult people with professionalism, even when it is not deserved. And thumbs down to the same said difficult people who now think it is appropriate to go door to door harassing people with their antics.

Here's another reason why building a new high school is a good idea - it actually got Jim Miceli and Mike Cairra to agree on something!

Strings parents lend strong support

Dear Editor,

Strings is a 5 credit course at Wilmington High. It is the largest and leading String Orchestra in Massachusetts. Our students have traveled to Italy, Ireland, France, England, Quebec and Austria to perform for foreign dignitaries representing our town, state and country around the world. These same students are subjected to substandard conditions in their own High School and have been for years.

Our student's classroom is the stage in the Auditorium, the same stage that is needed and used for assemblies, enrichment programs, picture days, drama productions and much more. Every time one of the above is occurring our students loose their classroom. Sometimes for a day or two, sometimes for a week or two, however long it is, it is too long to be displaced from a classroom.

When our students are in their classroom they have to contend with improper heating, improper lighting, vandalism, leaking ceilings and inadequate space to learn, practice and perform.

String students are not the only students affected by poor conditions. Every student is affected in some way everyday by the lack of space, poor building quality and limitations of our current High School.

Please help provide our Wilmington students with the education they deserve by voting yes for a new High School.

Counting our blessings

Dear Editor:

As we enter the season where we are encouraged to give thanks and count our blessings, I wanted to take this opportunity to remind our community how lucky we are to be Wilmington Residents.

While many towns around us have to pay user fees for trash and recycling to be removed every week, Wilmington has no such fees.

While many towns around us have to pay over and above their tax bills for their children to attend full day kindergarten, Wilmington has no such fees.

While many towns around us have to pay user fees for their children to participate in after school activities, such as athletics or performing arts, Wilmington has no such fees.

While many towns around us struggle with financial issues, Wilmington has the second highest bond rating that could possibly be given to any town.

While all of us face the struggles of everyday life in this ever changing world, Wilmington has such an unbelievable sense of community and citizenship, that there is help for anyone who seeks it and ready compassion for our fellow human in need. It is this sense of community that I hope inspires people to vote "Yes" on December 6th for a new high school.

As the mother of four young children, I want the best for them in their academics. As the President of the Wilmington Educational Foundation, I want what is best for our school system. As the President of the Women of Wilmington and the owner of two small businesses in Wilmington, I want what is best for our community.

I ask all residents of Wilmington to join me on December 6th to Vote "Yes" for a new high school and again say "Yes" to our most wonderful town of Wilmington.
Sincerely,
Jomarie F. O'Mahony

School Committee Chair urges YES vote

Letter to the Editor:

For approximately $164 per YEAR, less than many citizen's monthly cable bill, Wilmington can provide the town with an $81,563,115 state of the art high school. The average cost to the homeowner is based on a 25-year bond at 3.20%.

Due to the careful planning and responsible decisions of our Town Manager, Board of Selectmen, Finance Committee and Town Meeting participants, Wilmington currently finds itself in the perfect financial position to undertake this project. As a community, we are debt free. In addition, we have been awarded a state grant for 55.19% of eligible costs of the project. Our tax dollars will be at work within our own community!

From the beginning of this project, over 20 public meetings ago, the School Committee voted its unanimous support for the project. The process has been transparent and the effort by the High School Building Committee to educate all taxpayers has been constant.

While it can be discouraging to have a few vocal naysayers attempt to taint the project with misinformation, despite being told repeatedly by the experts the correct answers to their questions, anyone who has followed the process can see through their tactics.

At this point in the process, I find it hard to believe that most voters have not made a decision to support the project - or not. If you have decided not to support the project, please consider that if we do not build now:

- the town will lose approximately $38 million of state funding (our own taxes) that will then go to another community whose new school the taxpayers of Wilmington will help to subsidize;

- WHS will be at risk of losing its NEASC Accreditation due to the conditions of the current building;

- the project will be removed from the state list of approved projects.

We are a COMMUNITY. For this reason alone, any improvements that we can provide for one another need to be thoughtfully considered. It is the right thing to do.

Peggy Kane
Chairman, Wilmington School Committee

Pedestrian Safety At Night

Dear Editor:

It is once again that time of year: Daylight Savings. We all know what that means. We lose one hour of sleep and dusk falls earlier. Here lies the issue of pedestrian visibility. It is extra important that we, as drivers, are extra vigilant in our driving.

Research has shown that pedestrians dramatically overestimate their visibility. Because collisions between pedestrians and vehicles are both common and devastating, it is necessary that both parties take precautions in preventing such accidents. Visibility aids have the potential to improve detection and recognition of pedestrians. Such aids include high beam illumination headlamps, flashlights, and both fluorescent and retroreflective materials. Biomotion markings, which illuminate the pedestrian's limbs and therefore highlight their movements, have proven to enhance pedestrian visibility as well.

These safety measures, in combination with cautious and attentive driving, have the capability to prevent injury, and even save a life. It is the small precautions we can take that ultimately make a drastic impact in one's life. In doing so we will better our community by establishing a safe and welcoming environment for pedestrians. Pedestrians will feel protected, and as a result, drivers will have an ease of mind while operating vehicles.

Thank you,
Leah DiNatale

Final tryouts for "Tewksbury Has Talent" program

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Historical Society will host a Tryout Night on November 30, 2011 at the Wynn School starting at 6:10 p.m. This is the third year the program will be held. The tryouts are open to any person or groups of people that are interested in performing on December 3, 2011 in the "Tewksbury Has Talent" show.

This program celebrates the 277th birthday of the Town of Tewksbury, with an evening of entertainment ranging from singing and dancing to instrumental performances, comedy, and magic acts. The only restrictions are that you have to be a resident of Tewksbury, but groups who have a resident may have others in the group that are from out of town. The second restriction is that performers must be nine years or older.

It is hoped this year will be the first time a senior citizen will be in the show! The tryouts are a fun night and it is amazing how the other performers give support to the on-stage beginners. While teams from professionally run dance or self defense programs are in the tryouts, many beginners try-out every year.

The tryouts are judged by a panel of judges and by the audience. Audience judging costs $1 for a judging sheet and count for one half of the score. The final show's order of performers reflect the scoring from the tryout night. Winners of the tryout night will receive a performance award at the conclusion of the Tewksbury Has Talent Show.

While the program grew during its second year, all the performers that were at the tryout night were part of the big show celebrating Tewksbury's birthday.

The Tewksbury Has Talent Show will open on December 3 at 6:30 p.m. on the stage of the Wynn Middle School. If you attend both the November 30 tryout (admission is free) and the December 3 Talent Show, you will notice a big improvement in the student's performances.

Come and support our newest talents who are on stage perhaps for the first time. The December 3 show will have a brief intermission. Birthday cake for the towns 277th birthday will be given out free - as long as it lasts!

Tickets for the December 3 show will be on sale at the Local History Room each Tuesday from 3:30-5:30 p.m.; the Local History Room is on the second floor of the Tewksbury Library. Come in and purchase a ticket and enjoy the history exhibits in the room.

Reservations may be made by emailing tewksburyhistoricalsociety@msn.com; you can order either premium seats ($8) or general admission seats ($6). You may pick up tickets and pay for them at the "will call" table the night of the performance by 6:15 p.m.

Applications to tryout are available in the offices of the Trahan, North Street, Wynn, Ryan, and T.M.H.S., as well as in the information posting area at the Public Library. The Senior Center will have some applications or you may download one from the Society's website at tewksburyhistoricalsociety.org. It is truly a night to remember and what a way to start the holiday season by celebrating the 277th birthday of Tewksbury.

The Tewksbury Historical Society's Building and Acquisition Fund will benefit from the proceeds of this annual fundraisers

High school face off

Both sides speak out on proposal for a new WHS

Article 1.

"This is the time for us to seize this wonderful situation that we as a community find ourselves in financially," Selectman Mike Champoux said. "This is not a cost burden, it is an investment."

Jomarie O'Mahony, winner of the 2011 Good Guy award, thanked everyone on the committees and anyone else involved in the project.

"There are many of us out there who may not be knocking on doors or carrying poster boards with us everywhere, but we are just as committed to this new high school as others are to the oil issue," O'Mahony said. "So thank you for all of your hard work, you have done a phenomenal job."

Some community members raised concerns over the pressing economy and asked if postponing the project by several years would be more responsible.

Committee member Richard Hayden responded with the costs of waiting.

"If we don't do it now, how long will the current building last? If we do this in 10 years, will the state funding be available? What will the kids in 10 years have to pay for a new school?" Hayden said.

Benton added potential loss of accreditation and MSBA funding to Hayden's remarks.

MacDonald presented opening remarks in support of Article 6. He spoke of the oil in the ground under the current high school stating concerns of migration once the old building is removed.

"The [current] school is acting like a dam. If we knock down the school we will be threatening other peoples' water supply," MacDonald said.

The warrant for Special Town Meeting includes four other articles. Article 2, if passed, will allow the town to acquire a parcel of land off Church Street that currently belongs to the First Baptist Church. That land will be incorporated onto the high school site. Article 3 and 4 would allow the town to impose liens for trimming or removal of trees and bushes that encroach on the public right of way when property owners fail to take action after notification by the town. Article 5 is simply a petitioned article seeking to purchase a small parcel of land currently owned by the town.

Wilmington's Walker family

Keen legal and mathematical minds achieved greatness

By LARZ F. NEILSON

One of the more brilliant families ever to live in Wilmington was the Walker - Kendall family, who lived on Shawheen Avenue near the old West School. Benjamin Walker was the son of Maj. Timothy Walker, who served as captain of one of Wilmington's companies of Minutemen on Concord day, 1775. He later became town treasurer and a state representative. He also tried unsuccessfully to lead the church into the tenets of Unitarianism.

The Walker family originally settled in Woburn in earliest Colonial times and has many descendants who have risen to positions of prominence.

Benjamin married Susanna Cook of Billerica on Nov. 27, 1800. They had six children before Benjamin died in 1811. Benjamin, 1801, Timothy, 1802, Sears Cook, 1805, Horatio, 1807, Joseph Brewster, 1809 and Susan, 1811. Four years later, Susanna married Ezra Kendall, from an old Tewksbury family. They had three children, Judith, 1816, Ezra Otis, 1818, and Abigail Maria, 1820. Three of Susanna's children, Timothy and Sears Walker and Ezra O. Kendall, became prominent in academic circles of the 19th Century. They all had careers covering multiple disciplines and greatly advancing the educational system of the country.

Timothy graduated from Harvard as First Scholar in 1826. After teaching mathematics for three years and publishing a book, Elements of Geometry, he entered Harvard Law School in 1829. The following year, he settled in Cincinnati, Ohio and entered a law office as a student. He passed the bar in 1831, and two years later, co-founded a law school, now the fourth oldest in the U.S. In 1837, he published Introduction to American Law. The book went through 11 editions. He remained as dean of the law school until 1844. His grandson, Nicholas Longworth, became Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives and married Alice Roosevelt, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt.

Sears Cook Walker also attended Harvard, graduating in 1825. He could read seven languages and could be referred to as a computer, an old term for an expert at mathematical calculations. After teaching in Massachusetts for two years, he moved to Philadelphia to teach high school. In 1836, he published a new edition of A Treatise on Astronomy by Sir John Herschel. Walker wrote a 20-page preface to this edition.

Up to that time, all scientific advancement had been taking place in Great Britain. Sears Walker and Otis Kendall were prominent among the Americans who changed that. Walker was invited to propose a plan for an observatory at Philadelphia High School. In accordance with his suggestion, the committee in charge of the school imported equipment, which, in his hands and those of his accomplished brother (Ezra Kendall), "have done so much for astronomy in America not merely by the number of observations made with them, but also by the incentive which they afforded to the lovers of astronomy in other parts of the country," said Benjamin A. Gould, in a memorial address.

"While engaged with his school, he studied medicine, and went through the whole course requisite for the attainment of a degree. He devoted his leisure for a period to the study of natural history, and was no mean proficient in geology and mineralogy, as well as in physics and chemistry," said Dr. Gould, whose address was incorporated in an article in Popular Science Monthly in Nov. 1894.

From 1836 to 1845 he was actuary of the Pennsylvania Company for the Insurance of Lives and Granting Annuities, a job that rewarded him handsomely. In the evening, he would go to the observatory.

In 1845, some bad investments left him nearly bankrupt. But this resulted in changes that would lead him to make significant scientific accomplishments.

In 1846, he went to work at the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington and was involved with the tracking of Neptune, the outermost planet in the Solar System and the first planet to be discovered before it was seen. It was detected by its gravitational pull on the planet Uranus, resulting in an odd wobble in its orbit.

Walker's role was finding that the planet had been seen in 1795 by Lalande, a French astronomer, who recorded it as a star. Walker did an analysis of where Neptune would have been at that time, and it was in the position of that "star." This contributed to the confirming of Neptune's orbit.

He then became director of the longitude department at the United States Coast Survey, where he invented a method of measuring longitudinal distance by electricity, greatly increasing the accuracy of mapping. It was a major discovery in electrical science.

"Sears Walker was the first to experimentally determine that the velocity of electricity ('galvanic waves') was not infinite," said Dr. Jim Corum in 2002. Dr. Corum is a noted electrical engineer, science historian and a Wilmington native.

"Walker stands alone as the earliest scientist to experimentally measure the finite velocity of electrical signals in distributed circuits."

"The startling thing here is that ... the most significant discoveries in the entire history of all science ... are wrapped around this discovery made by a guy who lived only a few stones' throw from all of us!" wrote Dr. Corum.

Sears encountered some paralysis in August 1851, apparently from a stroke. He recovered to some degree, but would not relent from his work. In 1852, he traveled north to determine longitudinal differences between Halifax, Bangor and Cambridge. However, in December 1852, he was again stricken. He first went to a hospital in Baltimore, then in Trenton, New Jersey. Slightly improved, he went to

Team of Lions: Flanagan's Green Berets

TMHS vet speaks of special forces experience

TEWKSBURY - The Town Crier is privileged to present the full text of Major Stephen Flanagan's speech, given November 11, 2011 at the Tewksbury Town Common. Major Flanagan is a decorated special forces veteran, a graduate of Tewksbury Memorial High School, and currently a graduate student at Harvard University. Flanagan served one tour of duty in both Iraq and Afghanistan.

For the past ten years, Major Flanagan has served in US Army Infantry and Special Operations units. He served as a Rifle Platoon Leader in the 501st Parachute Infantry Regiment, a Ranger Platoon Leader in the 1st Ranger Battalion, and was most recently Commander of a Military Freefall Specialty Detachment (aka A-Team) in the 10th Special Forces Group. He has completed three combat tours in Iraq and one in Afghanistan. Major Flanagan's commendations include the Combat Infantryman Badge, five Army Commendation Medals and two Bronze Star Medals.

Flanagan received warm welcome at the Veterans' Day ceremony and delivered a stirring speech, addressing the needs of combat veterans, illustrating some of his combat experience, and calling for service to community.

Thank you Mr. Williams.

State Senator Feingold, Representative Miceli, Representative Adams, Town Selectman, Mr. Williams, Mr. Selissen, distinguished guests, veterans and citizens thank you for inviting me here this Veteran's Day; I am tremendously honored to be with you on this beautiful morning.

It is great to be back in Tewksbury. I would like to talk about three things: gratitude for our older veterans, helping our struggling veterans, and the rewards of service.

1- Thank our older veterans

While Memorial Day is about honoring our fallen heroes, this day is primarily about honoring our living ones. Our troops serve because they love America and our people. As a veteran of Iraq and Afghanistan I can say that we have been extremely grateful for the support we have received from you here in Massachusetts; your support has been inspiring and uplifting.

As Mr. Selissen said, next month will mark the 70th anniversary of Pearl Harbor and today I would like you all to join me in thanking our older veterans of not only WWII, but also those of Korea, Bosnia, the Persian Gulf and Vietnam, who never received the gratitude that they deserved. We should remember that the judgment of whether or not we should conduct a war has nothing to do with the level of sacrifice by our soldiers who fight it. As General Patton, the legendary WWII commander, said, "I am a soldier. I fight where I'm told, and I win where I fight." Many call the WWII cohort the "greatest generation"; yet I think we should equally thank all of our veterans and other public servants as the greatest of their generations.

Gratefully, I believe that we have learned a lot since the Vietnam era. As many Americans expressed their opposition to the Iraq War in political forums, they continued to express their gratitude directly to us veterans. This is appropriate and I beg you to continue making this distinction in the future.

2- Helping our struggling Veterans

33,000 service members have returned from Iraq and Afghanistan physically wounded. Yet many, many more have returned with psychological issues. Across the nation the rates of depression, suicide and homelessness among veterans is sky-high. Veterans represent 11% of the adult civilian population, but nearly 1/3 of the homeless population. In the past decade, we have lost more troops to suicide than we have in Afghanistan. I have seen this on a personal level; two soldiers in my last unit committed suicide. And it has happened here locally; earlier this year I read the Lowell Sun story about the suicide of a Marine in Wilmington. This compels me to share my experiences and offer some recommendations on how you can help.

I think these problems stem mainly from difficulty reintegrating into civilian life due to loss of social connections and old relationships. A 2010 study found that 40% of veterans had "some" to "extreme" difficulty in readjusting to civilian life.

I was one of those struggling veterans. After my fourth combat tour, I returned home to a failed relationship and no friends where I lived in Colorado. And after spending the past decade carrying a weapon, being part of a tight team and serving a cause that was bigger than myself, at home I felt a void in camaraderie, connection and purpose. I had to wage my own war against depression and to reconnect to this civilian world. I derived strength from the support of my religious faith and my loving family. I was also blessed with employment and a good education. Yet I still struggled. Imagine how much harder it is for the veterans without these blessings.

When soldiers are deployed, we often have delusions of grand homecomings. The reality rarely meets our expectations. While we have been off training and fighting, our civilian peers have grown up, started families and made new friends. Our reunions are like that of Rip Van Winkle; we discover that our friends, and often our girlfriends, have moved on without us. In the military, we were part of a tight wolf pack. Back as civilians, we often find ourselves as the lonely outsider.

So for those of you who would like to help our struggling veterans, I want to offer three simple suggestions:

1. Thank every soldier you meet for his or her service. It is never too late and it can never be said too much.
2. When veterans move into, or return to, your neighborhood or your workplace, try to befriend them and help them get socially connected. Invite them to your cookouts and bowling leagues. A 2009 study found that social support reduces depression in veterans. We are social organisms and we need the social support to survive.
3. If you want to take it a step further, support an advocacy organization, such as the USO, the Wounded Warrior Project or my personal favorite: Team Red, White & Blue.

3 - The Rewards of Service
Our veterans derive great satisfaction from serving a greater cause and I want to ask that each of you consider serving this community, this country or this world with part of your life too. I think it is one of the most rewarding things you can do.

I have seen a lot in my Army years. I have been on the receiving end of bullets, mortars, rockets, and roadside bombs. I served across four continents and spent years away from home. Yet all the danger and sacrifice was worth it to serve a cause that was greater than myself. I want to share my experience from one deployment and how it was deeply rewarding.

In 2007, Iraq's Zaab Triangle was an Al Qaeda stronghold. Al Qaeda's banners were displayed publicly, they had a newspaper distributed weekly, and Sharia law was enforced strictly. That summer, Al Qaeda beheaded a man in the center of town for a minor infraction of their law. It was daily terrorism on a local level. Imagine that here in Tewksbury. Meanwhile, there were no coalition forces in that area and the small Iraqi Army and Police elements there were too weak and afraid to confront Al Qaeda. So when my 12-man Special Forces team arrived there we were outnumbered and outgunned, but as good Green Berets we welcomed the challenge.

As soon as we arrived, I worked on developing friendships with the area tribal leaders, called sheiks. The top sheik, Abu Muthanna, began inviting us to his house for teas and dinners, where he told me stories about his tribe and the history of the area while my teammates played with his children. Abu Muthanna soon took us in as his own family, and he even gave me a name within his tribe: Naqeeb Waseem Asid Sahen al-Juburi, which means from the Sahen sub-tribe of the Juburi tribe with the rank of Captain and the name "Handsome Lion" - I didn't have a problem with that name! Yet as Abu Muthanna continued to tell me stories, he eventually told me the grisly story of how his son was burned to death by Al Qaeda. He managed to hold back the tears but I could tell that it pained him very deeply. He was sick of Al Qaeda's reign of terror in the local area. So I was able to convince him to take the risk and start providing me with intelligence on the area terrorists. He soon informed me that Sattam

Wilmington's Walker family

Cincinnati, to the home of his brother, where he died on Jan. 30, 1853.

The Walker School, built in 1896 was named in his honor. It stood at the corner of Adelaide and Church streets in Wilmington, today the site of the Public Safety Building.

Susan Walker, sister to Sears and Timothy, worked along with her brother at the U.S. Coast Survey. Like her brother, she was a computer, with great mathematical ability.

The Walkers' much younger half-brother, Ezra Otis Kendall also went to Philadelphia in 1835, and began teaching at the high school. A daguerreotype picture was taken of him in late 1839, and it is believed to be the earliest picture of that type taken in Philadelphia.

Like his brother Sears, Ezra had a fascination with astronomy. Kendall became director of the observatory, and had the title of Professor. In 1845, he published a book, Uranography, A Description of the Heavens, which undertook mapping of the constellations, the first to use point by point charts instead of elaborate drawings of mythical figures.

In 1855, he was appointed professor of mathematics at the University of Pennsylvania, a private institution founded by Benjamin Franklin. In 1881, he became the first Thomas A. Scott professor of mathematics. Eleven years later, he was appointed to the Flower Professorship of astronomy. The university also honored him with an honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1888.

His son, Otis H. Kendall, also became a professor of mathematics at the University of Pennsylvania.

Ezra Otis Kendall died in 1899. A chair at the University of Pennsylvania is named in his honor.

Team of Lions: Flanagan's Green Berets

Hamid Khalif was Al Qaeda's area commander. Sattam was also a former Baath Party leader who had been wanted since 2003.

Meanwhile, my team began training two platoons of the local Iraqi Army unit, teaching them how to shoot and how to do missions. This built their confidence. Once the Iraqi platoons were ready we began to conduct missions with them. We conducted raids nearly every night to capture or kill the terrorists throughout the area. One morning, we even got a tip on the location of Sattam, the Al Qaeda area commander. We went out to try to capture him in broad daylight. When we arrived at his house, no one was home. We knew we were close because tea was still cooking on the stove. Just following a sense in our gut, my Iraqi Army friend, Dana, and I ran down the back alley trying to find him. We could have run into a trap, but I had a sense that we were on the terrorist leader's tail. We passed several homes, but when we got to one near the end of the alley, we followed our intuition inside. Dana beat me to him. I remember hearing Dana yell "Irfa Edik! Irfa Edik!" which means hands up, and when I turned the corner I saw Dana pointing his pistol and trembling terribly. I had never seen Dana afraid before. Then I saw the terrorist there, kneeling, praying loudly and also trembling. I thought he was wearing a suicide vest and was about to blow himself up. I pointed my rifle at him and considered shooting him so we would not all die. But then Dana charged him bravely... Thank God, the terrorist did not have a bomb. Dana handcuffed him and we took the Al Qaeda commander to jail.

On the drive to the jail after we captured Sattam, the local Iraqis came out to celebrate in the streets. This was September 2007; I had not seen celebration like this since 2003. After months of hard work, Al Qaeda was truly defeated in that area, the Iraqi Army & Police controlled security and the locally elected governments were in control of their own destiny. Upon our departure, Sheik Abu Muthanna thanked us profusely and told us he would never forget us. He told me, "Waseem, you lead a team of lions." I said, "Yes I do Sir, but in my country we call them Green Berets."

If I sound proud, it's because I am. Not of what I did but because of what we did. Not because of who I am, but because of what I was a part of. My small team helped to make that small slice of the world a better place. I had similar experiences on my other tours in Iraq and Afghanistan. Experiences I hope to tell my grandchildren about. Experiences I would not have had if I did not decide to serve something bigger than myself. I am proud to be part of a military which has liberated oppressed peoples, taken the fight to Al Qaeda, prevented further attacks on our homeland since September 11th, and buried Osama Bin Laden in his watery grave.

Young people here today, I pose a challenge to you: serve something larger than yourself as well. Your generation will have great challenges - poverty, debt, global warming, terrorism and more. Rise to the occasion, take responsibility and take charge. We need all of you to serve with at least part of your life; whether it be in the military, Peace Corps, Teach for America, protecting the environment, helping the homeless or serving another good cause. And I hope that the best among you will consider becoming political leaders as well; for we need competent and trustworthy leaders.

This call to service is for all youth; from 5 to 85 years young. I am proud of my parents, who are well into their 70s and still volunteer regularly. For the past 48 years, they have served here in the Tewksbury Youth Soccer League, St. Williams Church and the Tewksbury Food Pantry. And my father is also an Army veteran. But more importantly, my parents set a great example for me and my brothers. My parents are just two among many humble heroes who enable this community to thrive.

In closing, I'd like to say that regardless of your age or position, I encourage you to serve some facet of our community with part of your life. Not only will your community reap the rewards, but you will also. As the Reverend Martin Luther King said, "Everybody can be great, because anybody can serve."

May God bless Tewksbury & may God bless America.

Ed Flanagan, Mark Wood, Paul McNaught and (back row) John Hourihan and Tom Gannon saluted in Tewksbury on Veteran's Day. Mr. Flanagan's son, Major Stephen Flanagan was the Key Note Speaker.

WCTV Crew-call

Volunteers needed for special town meeting

The Town of Wilmington is having a special town meeting regarding the "debt exclusion" for the new high school.

The date of the meeting will be Saturday, Dec. 10th.

WCTV will be covering this special meeting as part of our agreement with the town.

This is where you come in!

We are in need of volunteers on Friday, Dec. 9th at noon to help us load our portable studio and equipment needed to broadcast the meeting into the van. We will be unloading at the high school gym and setting up until about 5 p.m. You may volunteer for as long as you like. If you cannot be here at noon but are available for another time, please let us know!

On SATURDAY, DECEMBER 10th we will also need assistance with the actual broadcast of the meeting. Positions available include: camera, audio, graphics and breakdown of the set up as well as returning it to WCTV to unload the equipment after the meeting is over.

The crew-call time for December 10th is 9 a.m. at the High School (in the gym). We will be broadcasting until the meeting is over and as such cannot give you an actual volunteer end time as we broadcast these meetings until they are completed.

Please email Lisa Kapala at lkapala@wctv.org (or call 978-657-4066) with the date(s) and time(s) you are available, and what crew position(s) you would prefer. We will be compiling a master list for December 10th with blocks of time scheduled for all volunteers with break times built in so that no one feels overwhelmed during the time they volunteer.

Thank you again in advance for your support!

Costello catches onto Rams' winning ways

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

If the Shawsheen Tech Football team finds themselves in a close game and in need of a big play on Thanksgiving morning against Greater Lowell, they know where to turn to come up with that big play.

Whether it is making the big first down catch, making a key tackle or coming up with a game clinching interception, Shawsheen senior wide receiver/defensive back Matt Costello has made a habit for being there for his team and Thanksgiving should be no different for the Rams quarterback, who does not seem to be intimidated by the large stage, as he proved in last year's Super Bowl against Blue Hills with an interception return for a touchdown that sealed the win for the Rams.

But it is not just making the big play that makes Costello the player he is, it is also his knack for making the little plays to help his team win games.

"Matt seems to have a knack for making the big play and making the tough catch," Shawsheen coach Al Costabile said. "But he also is willing to block and do all of the things that are required for us to win."

As for Costello, it doesn't matter if he is making the biggest play of the game or the smallest, his approach is always the same and his focus is always on his teammates.

"What I do is just try to put our team in the best position to win the game," Costello said. "If that means making a big play to help us win then that is great, but it is really the whole team. We are a family and whoever makes the big play it really doesn't matter as long as we win."

Costabile has obviously been impressed by Costello's exploits on the field, but what matters most to him is the attitude that he brings to the team every day, whether it is a game or a practice.

"What he cares most about is if Shawsheen Tech wins the football game," Costabile said. "I consider that the ultimate compliment to him. He plays hard all the time and his number one goal is for Shawsheen to win the football game."

In the early going of the season, of course the Rams weren't winning many games at all, as they struggled to a 1-4 start to the season. With a team that had grown accustomed to winning last season, a slow start like that could have proved disastrous but under the guidance of the coaching staff, as well as Costello and the other captains, the team was able to come out of their funk and win the CAC Large for the second straight season.

"Our captains, including Matt, were very important to us during the season," Costabile said. "Matt always had a very positive attitude which was very important for the team."

Costello credits the belief the team had in itself for the amazing turnaround that clinched a playoff spot for them. He also points to the Rams amazing win over Greater Lawrence when they scored two touchdowns in the final 27 seconds to win the game, as a turning point.

"We all knew that we were better than our record said and better than what we were playing like," Costello said. "We knew we just had to take care of business in our league and we did that. It all started with the Greater Lawrence game. After that you could see a difference in the team during practice. We were just so fired up and we started to play better."

Costello also credits the Rams coaching staff for keeping the team together and having them prepared for the stretch run.

"We could not do it without our coaches," Costello said. "All of our coaches are great from coach Costabile to (defensive coordinator) coach (Jim) Sullivan, and all of the coaches. They do a great job of getting us ready each week."

That preparation will be more important than ever of course in the coming weeks with first the big Thanksgiving Day game against Greater Lowell looming and then the first round playoff contest with Cardinal Spellman next week.

And as excited as Costello and the Rams are to be going to the playoffs once again, they will not be caught looking past their arch rivals from Greater Lowell with the Collins Cup on the line.

"Being a senior of course we do not want to hand the Collins Cup back to them, so right now we are only worried about Greater Lowell," Costello said. "We are excited about the playoffs, but as coach Costabile has told us, if you are focusing on a game that is two weeks from now, you will lose the game in front of you. So right now we are only focused on Greater Lowell."

Matt Costello of Wilmington, and a senior captain of the Shawsheen Tech Football team, makes a catch during Thursday's practice. Costello and the Rams first have to face Greater Lowell on Thanksgiving before entering the playoffs for the second straight year with this year's first round match-up against Cardinal Spellman. ### Division 3A Playoff Preview

Rams to match up against powerful Spellman squad

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

During last season's run to the Division 4 Super Bowl championship the Shawsheen Tech Football team had to get through a talented Madison Park team in the semi-finals before knocking off an even more talented Blue Hills Regional team in the Super Bowl.

Both games were indeed tough tests for the Rams and they passed them both with flying colors to capture their first Super Bowl title in 32 years.

If the Rams hope to repeat as Division 4 champions this season they will face an even tougher path to the title. The challenge starts next Tuesday night, when the Rams take on Catholic Central Large champion Cardinal Spellman in the semi-finals of the Division 4 playoffs.

Spellman made a run of their own to the Super Bowl last season, but never faced the Rams in the post season. The reason being that Spellman's run last year was to the Division 3A Super Bowl, where they lost their only game of the season to Holliston at Gillette Stadium.

Despite their tremendous success last season the Cardinals were dropped down to Division 4 this season due to realignment and they have continued their tremendous success under legendary coach Ron St. George, posting a 10-0 regular season record this season and capturing the Catholic Central Large with a 29-21 win over Arlington Catholic last Saturday.

It will undoubtedly be the toughest test of the season for Shawsheen and coach Al Costabile is well aware of the challenge his team will face.

"There are some people I have talked to in their league who feel they are even better than last year," Costabile said. "They are very good on both sides of the football and it will be a great challenge for us and it is a great position for us to be in. It is great for us to go through the season and to have this opportunity."

The playoff game also allows fans the opportunity to see two great veteran coaches go head to head. St. George, in his fourth year of a great rebuilding job at Spellman and his 31st season overall, has a 220-104-5 career record, which places him 23rd overall in wins in Massachusetts history.

Costabile, meanwhile is in his 14th year at Shawsheen, and 21st overall and has posted a career record of 131-82.

"I go back a long way with coach St. George and I have a lot of respect for him," Costabile said. "He has done a great job at Cardinal Spellman as he has done everywhere he has been. I have a lot of respect for him and I enjoy our relationship."

If the Rams, who have won four games in row to improve to 5-4 on the season, are going to pull the upset against the mighty Cardinals they will have to start by stopping the talented backfield duo of running back Pat Hinkley and fullback Dan Kustka.

The senior captains have both had outstanding seasons with Hinkley totaling 113 points on the season, including 18 touchdowns, while Kustka has 72 points and 12 touchdowns.

"Hinkley will be tough," Costabile said. "He comes from a long line of Hinkley's at Cardinal Spellman. I am sure he is related and there is a long line of great Hinkley running backs. He is going to be a handful. He is a complete running back."

Kustka is a real good player as well. They make a great pair and they will be tough to stop."

Junior quarterback Tim Burke is no slouch either, having thrown six touchdown passes on the season including three to senior tight end Joey Glynn and two to senior tight end Ricky Donovan, both of whom are 6'5".

"We will have our hands full with them," Costabile said. "We will have to do the best we can to maintain our fundamentals that have been coached. Otherwise in a situation like that where they have a big height advantage you can have a big problem."

Spellman is also very talented on defense where they are led by Donovan and Glynn at defensive end. The Cardinals have out scored opponents 276-62 this season with four shutouts, the 62 points being the second fewest allowed in the state.

"They play excellent team defense and will definitely present our biggest challenge of the season," Costabile said.

The Rams of course are playing some great defense of their own, which is exactly what carried them to their Super Bowl title last season. While they are not quite as dominant as that group which posted four consecutive shutouts down the stretch, they have been playing very well, as they Rams have outscored their opponents 77-32 during the current four game winning streak.

"Our defense has been getting better every week and defense wins championships," Costabile said. "We know we will have to play even better to beat Spellman."

Regardless of what happens against Spellman, however, Costabile is proud of all that his team has accomplished to this point, as they bounced back from a 1-4 start to capture a second consecutive league title.

"I think that what this team has done is remarkable," Costabile said. "They are the most resilient group of kids. When things are going really bad and there are so many doubters out there it is tough to bounce back. But they were able to start from a situation like that and have a great year. It says a lot about their character and their determination."

Shawsheen to first tackle Gr. Lowell

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

When the Shawsheen Tech Football team takes the field in Tyngsboro for their 15th Annual Thanksgiving Day matchup with Greater Lowell on Thursday morning, they will know that for the second year in a row they will have at least one more game to play regardless of the outcome of the matchup with their arch rivals.

The defending Division 4 Super Bowl champion Rams captured their second straight Commonwealth Athletic Conference Large School championship last week with a 24-6 win over Northeast Metro Tech and win or lose against Greater Lowell they will take on Cardinal Spellman in the first round of the Division 4 playoffs next Tuesday at a time and place to be determined.

But just as the looming playoff game did not seem to distract his players at all last season when they rolled to a 35-0 victory for their tenth straight win in the series, (ST leads 14-4 overall), Shawsheen coach Al Costabile does not think his team will have any problem getting up for Greater Lowell.

"Thanksgiving is a special time for a high school football player in Massachusetts," Costabile said. "I know that it is something that our players look forward to every year and I know they will be excited and ready to play in this game."

And Costabile knows that his team had better be ready to play at their best. The past couple of seasons frankly, the Gryphons have not had much of a chance against the Rams, particularly last season when they struggled to an 0-10 record while the Rams were making their Super Bowl run.

But this season is different, as the Rams will bring a 5-4 overall record into the game while the Gryphons will come in with a much improved 4-5 record under new coach Kevin Callagy who took over for Dennis Murphy who retired last season after 26 seasons directing the Gryphons.

Part of the reason for the Gryphons turnaround has been a switch from the CAC Large to the Small, but they have also improved from the past few seasons regardless of what league they are playing in.

"It has been a real good year for them," Costabile said. "They are turning things back in the right direction. They are a scrappy team that can do a lot of good things on both sides of the ball. They have won four games and I am sure they would love to get to .500 against us."

"I am sure they feel like they can beat us. This is their Super Bowl in more ways than one. We have beaten them 10 games in a row and you know they would like to break that streak."

If the Gryphons are going to upset the Rams it will likely be due to a great effort from junior quarterback Derek Bruce. Bruce has thrown ten touchdown passes on the season and has run for eight more, providing a dual threat that the Rams must be prepared for.

Bruce tuned up for Thanksgiving with a an outstanding effort last week in a 32-20 win over Mystic Valley with three touchdown passes and 197 yards rushing.

"Derek is a great player," Costabile said. "I have known his dad for a long time and he is a coach over at Austin Prep. He comes from a great football family and has a great football mind. He has been well coached throughout his life and he can beat you with his legs or his arm. He is going to be a handful."

The Rams of course will also be quite the handful for Greater Lowell, as they will enter the game on a four game winning streak that has propelled them into the Division 4 playoffs.

During that four game streak they have outscored opponents by a 77-32 margin and have seen the emergence of junior quarterback Mike O'Hearn who has solidified the position for the Rams since taking over the full time starting role in mid season and made them a threat to both run and throw the ball on offense with 11 touchdown passes.

Meanwhile junior receiver Devonn Pratt has caught five touchdown passes, with two of them coming on halfback options passes from Paul DePlacido last week, and senior running back Andrew Dascoli leads the rushing attack after missing much of the season with an injury.

With two teams playing good football, it should provide for an exciting Thanksgiving morning of football, and Costabile, who is coaching his 14th Turkey Day game for the Rams and 21st overall, is looking forward to once again being a part of it.

"The tradition of Thanksgiving football in Massachusetts is unparalleled and everyone gets into it from the alumni to the administration to everyone in the school," Costabile said. "It really brings the community together. Sometimes we are so busy that we just don't have time to do that, but Thanksgiving brings us together. It is like a magnet and it is great to be a part of."

Wilmington High Sub Varsity teams seasonal wrap-ups

By CHRIS RICCIARDI & KYLIE SEDGWICK

This season featured a unique challenge for the Wilmington High JV Boys Soccer team. With Wilmington joining the Middlesex League this season, the team faced a new slate of opponents. Despite the initial challenge, though, Wilmington was able to finish with a 12-2-4 record.

"You're used to playing certain towns and teams," coach Dennis Ingram said. "We were mostly going into the season blind, not knowing what to expect. It was a very successful season."

Ingram added that his goals for the season didn't focus on wins and losses, but rather on improving the players' abilities. He said that coming into the season, he saw that his players were already very skilled.

"It showed that they played a lot," Ingram said. "You could see that they enjoyed playing with each other. It will be very interesting to see how they go on to the varsity level. It's a huge transition to continue success at the varsity level. I'm confident that they have the talent to do so. They prepare themselves, put the work him, and dedicate themselves to improving as players."

The one game that stood out to Ingram wasn't a blowout win or last-minute victory. Rather, it was a hard-fought game that taught his team a lesson. Wilmington first defeated Stoneham by a 5-0 mark. The game was a lot harder the second time around, though.

"For any high school kid, they automatically think it was easy," Ingram said. "(Stoneham was) vastly improved, and they fought us hard. We scored the game-winning goal with seven seconds left. Stoneham played us hard, and it was a great lesson for the team."

Midfielder Matt Diorio was one of Wilmington's top offensive players. It wasn't a high goal tally that made him stand out to Ingram, however. It was Diorio's intensity on the field.

"He dove for balls," Ingram said. "A ball would be rolling down the field, and he would run through the defenders and disrupt the play. He would dive out of nowhere and head it in when the ball was in front of the goal."

Along with Diorio, Ingram said that Austin O'Neil and Kyle Souza led a "solid attack" on the offensive side of the ball.

On defense, John Weaver and Vinny Poli led Wilmington and made for a formidable challenge to any opposing offenses. Ingram relied on them to set up the defense.

"The fact they allowed less than a goal per game (on average throughout the season) is remarkable," Ingram said. "Those two guys were the main guys on defense. They took control defensively, and they did a fantastic job. They got more comfortable with more games. If you compared the first few weeks of the season to the last few weeks, you can definitely see improvement."

Alex Neville stood in goal for Wilmington throughout the season. Since he was the only goalie on the team, he saw a lot more action than most junior varsity goalies. On other teams, there is usually a rotation of goalies.

"There were some games where he didn't have any action because of our defense," Ingram said. "He did a good job when challenged. On our freshmen team, we didn't have a goalie. Seeing so much action helped him out a lot."

The only two juniors on the team were Dan Sullivan and Adam Maenza. The remainder of the team was made up of sophomores William Simmons, Mitchell Goulet, James Murphy, Colin Chase, Craig Smith, Chris Saporito, Diorio, Souza, Alexander Pizette, Adam Coccoluto, O'Neal, Neville, Eric Grabar, Michael Maggioli, Weaver, and Poli.

JV FIELD HOCKEY

They scored 46 goals and only allowed two goals. That statistic helps tell the story of the 2011 Wilmington High JV Field Hockey team. They went 15-0-1, dominating the Middlesex League.

"Each and every year, my goal is to get the girls ready for the varsity level by incorporating teamwork, accurate passing, overlapping and recovering, tenacity, and playing the ball clean," coach Dianne DeMaggio said. "I believe that (my team) met all of these expectations and if the girls stay conditioned, work really hard during the off-season and stay committed, they will be a great asset to the program next year."

The biggest turning point of the season came in a game against Melrose, even though it was a blowout for the Wildcats. Up 6-0 at the half, DeMaggio told her team to play the second half like a practice. They came out even stronger in the second half, winning by a large margin. In another game against Watertown, Wilmington couldn't come up with a goal in the first half. However, they were able to turn the tide and come out with a victory.

Sophie Serna (18 goals, 3 assists) and Shreya Pai (9 goals, 9 assists) led the team in scoring. DeMaggio said that Rachel Alatalo (3 goals, 5 assists) was able to track down a lot of loose balls and that she was the fastest player on the team. Goalie Casey Herra was nearly flawless during the entire season, only allowing two goals while stopping 34 shots.

There were three freshmen on the team including Kourtney Bolis, Nicole McInerney, and Lauren Fitch and the three of them "stepped up their level of play during the season", DeMaggio said. The defense was led by Jess Marciello and Jacqui Duffy. Forwards Melissa O'Donoghue, Jillian Williams, Laura Magee, and Janelle Celeste were able to hold their own in front of opposing nets. DeMaggio added that Jocelyn Cornish was the key playmaker, as she "knew how to read the field and get the ball to the forwards."

The season was extremely successful and the success was due to the players' mental outlook.

"The entire team played together as one and the girls never cared who scored," DeMaggio said. "They just wanted to score-score-score. They girls played every minute with intensity. They started the season slow, but once they clicked as a team, they were unstoppable. By the end of the season, everyone had executed the plays we practiced. It was a great season."

JV FOOTBALL

The Wilmington High JV Football team was able to match the success of their varsity counterparts with a 7-2-1 record this season.

"Our strength was our overall size," coach Carl Stauffer said. "We had a fair number of tall boys, especially in the offensive line and the defensive line."

The team struggled, however, with breakaway speed. Wilmington had difficulty outrunning opponents, which hurt their ability to make the big play. Stauffer also said that the team had some trouble tackling.

Junior Jack Gingras led the defensive line. Stauffer described him as the "most aggressive and strongest" lineman on the team. Junior Dave Cairra, sophomore Mike Curtis, sophomore Tyler Fraser, and sophomore Troy Vibert were the most consistent tacklers on the team. Junior Justin MacKinnon led the team rushing-wise. Stauffer said that sophomore Ryan Carracino stood out to him because of "his impressive effort and determination."

against Arlington High in week one. Stauffer said that he found the victories against Masconomet Regional and Woburn to be satisfying because of the Cape Ann League rivalry against Masconomet and because the win against Woburn was their first victory in the Middlesex League.

There were 14 sophomores on this year's team, and there were eight juniors. The sophomores include Colin Ahern, Carrocino, Sean Coakley, Curtis, Kevin Dunfey, Kody Dunnett, Tyler Fraser, Jon Mack, Scott Manganeli, Pat O'Connell, Dan Paige, Chris Popa, Troy, Vibert, and Avery Woodberry. The juniors were Pat Barry, Cairra, Jake Gingras, Troy Homola, MacKinnon, Eric Masiello, Tim Penney, and Sam Silva.

JV VOLLEYBALL

With a large mix of freshmen on the Wilmington High JV Volleyball team, coach Kylie Magee was faced with a possible challenge. Despite the possible difficulty, the Wildcats were able to put together an 8-12 season.

"We had a great group of young ladies on the team this season," Magee said. "We had a huge group of freshmen who were brand new to the sport, but they were an integral part of our team, and they will do great things for the volleyball team in the future. Our girls worked hard."

Magee said that she faced a difficulty in getting everyone into games because junior varsity games only last one or two games to 25. The team played very well against Winchester and Belmont, which was a close contest that came down to the third game, which Wilmington won 15-12.

Sophomore Kim Donoghue was the team's starter. Magee said that Donoghue has "an amazing ability to control a game and just her presence on the court can calm the whole team down." Fellow sophomores Carli Bent, Christa Bent, and Megan Hydorn are likely to see action at the varsity level after their excellent play this season. Gianna Mirabella was a starting middle who was essential to Wilmington's offense.

Hannah Brown, who she described as one of the best hitters on the JV team this season, shows great promise as either a middle or right-side hitter. Melissa Tonra had a presence in the back row, making strong plays for the Wildcats. Freshman Michelle Murray performed at the outside hitting position, enough so that Magee said she could make the varsity team in a year or two.

The back row included a lot of speedy players. Alivia Hamel came in big with her serves, and Raniece Turner was able to make great strides as a libero. Emma Tkachuck, Jess Nardone, Fallon Soye, and Kristen Connors made up Wilmington's back line. Caroline Johnston, Caroline Briere, and Michaela Oullette worked the front row.

"The team was always positive and very supportive of each other," Magee said. "They were all learning and made mistakes, but they worked so hard and they are all becoming great little volleyball players. It was a wonderful experience to coach these girls and I am unbelievably proud of each and every one of them."

FRESHMEN BOYS SOCCER

The newcomers to the Wilmington High Freshmen Boys Soccer team made quite an impression this season, finishing with an impressive 10-2-2 record.

"The goal at the beginning of the season was to go try and develop these players for the next step in their soccer career," coach Anthony Azevedo said. "We also wanted to develop as a team and work together as a unit."

I wish I had a video of the first game that we played and compare those to the games we played at the end of the season. It would look like a different team. I am really happy with how the team developed and grew."

Azevedo said that the game of the season that came against Belmont. The Wildcats found themselves trailing at the half, but they were able to put together a comeback and dominate the second half. Even though they wound up losing the game, Azevedo said that his team showed "a lot of character and mental toughness not to give up and keep on fighting."

The team's midfield play for the season consisted of players Jack Vieira, Ryan Kinsella, Justin Wright, Ron John Judkins, Brandon Spight, and Ben Ronleder. Wilmington's defensive unit was Robbie Mailley, co-captain Mark Derosa, Patrick McFall, Chris Maienza, Stephen O'Brien, and Bradley Priem. On offense, Mike Marcinkowski, Sean Moore, co-captain Kevin Goncalves, and Michael Dovidio led the way. Alex Nevel stood in as the Wilmington's goalie.

FRESHMEN FIELD HOCKEY

A large turnout for the Wilmington Freshmen Field Hockey squad resulted in quite a team for coach Maureen O'Mara. She described this year's team, who went 4-8-2, as "one of the biggest freshmen teams (that she has seen)."

"The girls had a great work ethic and attitude," O'Mara said. "They were able to come together as a team. They really worked hard and developed their skills. It was a lot of fun to be around them."

O'Mara said that one of the few issues that the team faced during the season was an inability to come out strong. She said that it was hard for her team to find their stride if the other team was able to grab the lead in the early going. If the Wildcats can get going early in the game, they would be that much more successful.

Wilmington played three games against Wakefield. The three battles included a little bit of everything, as each team won a game and they tied once. In the third game, Wilmington played one of its "strongest games", winning 2-1.

Wilmington's offensive unit was widespread, as seven different players scored for the Wildcats. Caitlin Baranow and Danielle Giantassio both scored four goals to lead the team. Bridget Cadogan scored three times this year, and Kelli MacDougall had two goals. Caroline Albanese, Amanda Hough, and Amelia Morris each had one goal.

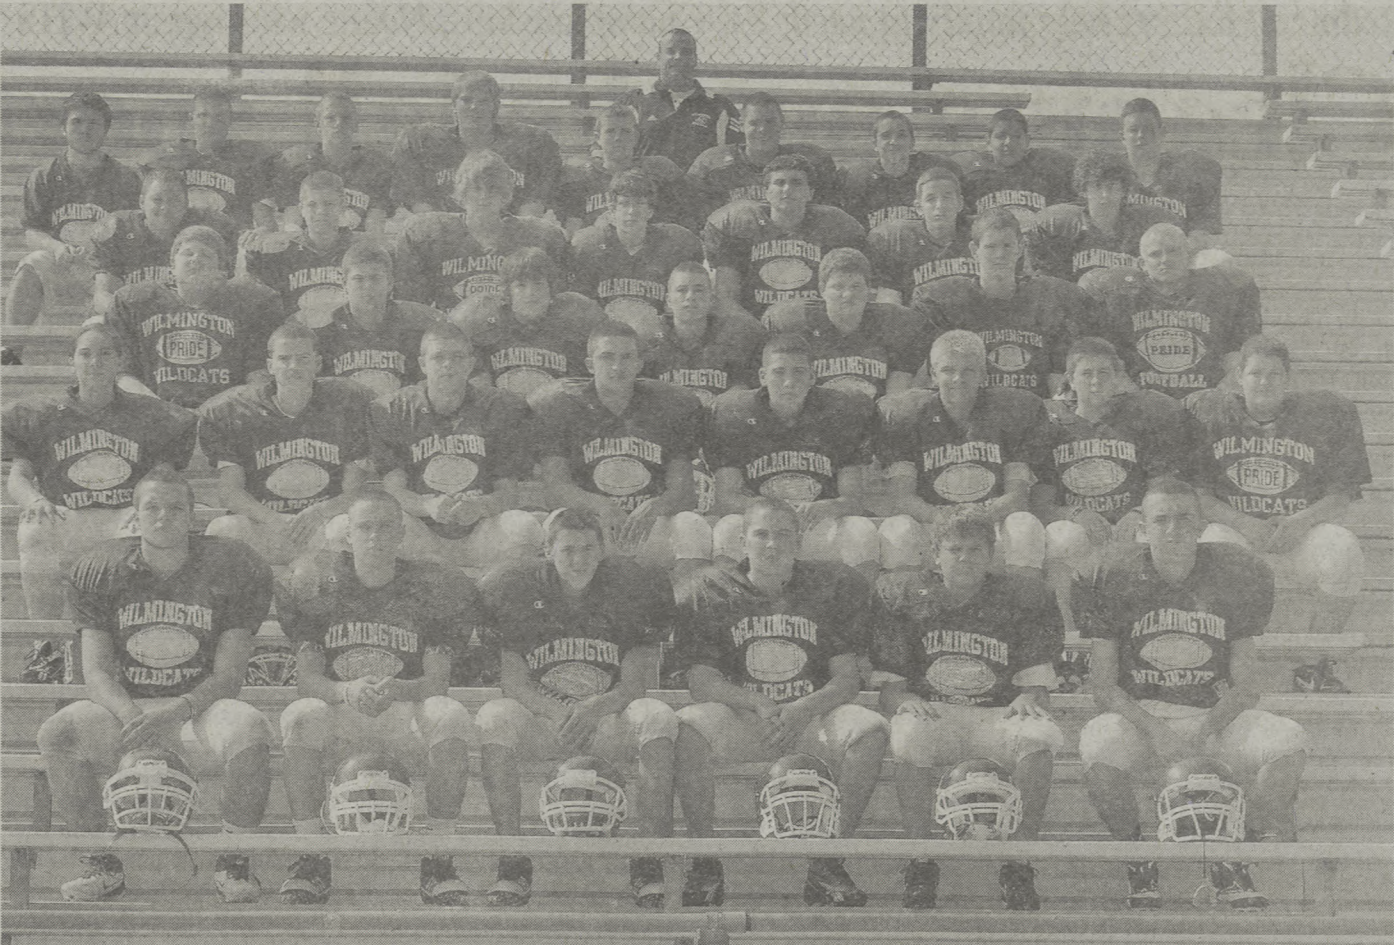

"These girls moved around a lot, and I really saw them come together to work on their passing and positioning in front of the net," O'Mara said. "Their speed and accuracy improved a great deal as the season went on."

Albanese, Jenny Holloran, and Stephanie Sullivan made up the midfield. They were able to get the ball out of Wilmington's end and feed it to the forwards for a quick transition.

"It seemed as if they were constantly battling other teams to keep moving the ball upfield," O'Mara said. "they played well as a group, and you could see the feel they had for their positions by season's end."

The defense was made up of Vickie Lee, Emily Monteforte, Nicole Resendes, and Emily Troy. Holloran also made several appearances on the defensive end of the ball. All four backs also played in goal at various points during the season, a rare occurrence in field hockey.

"The defense was solid all season despite rotating posi-

FOOTBALL

The season started and ended on a positive note for the Wilmington High freshmen football team, who started the season with a three-game winning streak and ended with a four-game streak. WHS finished overall at 7-4.

"We had the usual ups and downs this season," coach Mike Maloney said. "Having that winning-streak was a nice way to end it. I think that was when the team came together and truly understood how to play Wilmington football. They executed better."

As with most freshmen teams, Maloney had to teach the players the basics of high school football while trying to put together a strategy. This year's team was easy to teach, though.

"High school football is a little different," Maloney said. "It was some of the kids' first time playing football. Freshmen have a lot to deal with, such as getting used to a new school. The kids were really easy to teach. We have a great supportive system with the other high school coaches, and we do a lot with all of the teams. The kids picked it up really quick."

The season finale game against rival Tewksbury proved to be the highlight of the year. While playing underneath the lights at Alumni Stadium, the Wildcats fell down early to Tewksbury, 8-0, after giving up a big run. Wilmington was able to even the game with a touchdown on a turnover. Later in the game, the Wildcats were able to grab the lead and eventually won the game, 22-16.

Running back Evan Raffi led the Wilmington rushing attack with four touchdown runs of 70-plus yards, and fellow running back Matt Penney had a few receiving touchdowns as well as several rushing touchdowns. James O'Regan played at quarterback for the Wildcats, throwing ten touchdown passes. John Galasso was Wilmington's utility man, playing three different positions on offense. Wide receiver Ryan Horgan was able to pick up several touchdown receptions during the course of the season.

On defense, Wilmington had a strong defensive line made up of Aaron Harrington, Connor Bennett, Mike Amato, James Hill, and Nick Raffi. Maloney said that they were able to "wreak havoc" on opposing quarterbacks throughout the season. Dylan Masiello, Steve Layon, and Andrew Lespelance performed well at the inside linebacker position. The secondary for Wilmington included safeties Ryan Colangelo and Joe Scurto along with cornerbacks Mike Carracino, O'Regan, and Galasso. That group combined to pick up several interceptions throughout the season.

Redmen Mothers help family in need; XC Championships; Noone wins again; WHS Volleybal Seniors

Cleaning out the fall sports notebooks

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

With Thanksgiving coming up on Thursday, it seems only fitting to relay this quick little story that's going on in Tewksbury. Without using any names because it's really a delicate situation, there's about 20 Redmen Mothers - mothers of former and current Redmen athletes - who have been helping out a family in need. The group of mothers for the past three months have been supplying home cooked meals about four times a week to a local family, who has gone through a terrible tragedy.

"Usually the drop off meals are large enough that it lasts the whole week," said a member of this group. "One of the kids has been over our house a couple of times since all of this has taken place."

"He is a quiet person typically, but not when he talks about the kindness that the community has extended to them. He greatly appreciates the assistance they have been given."

Certainly with everything going on with the recession, this gesture certainly says that there certainly are wonderful people in this town, who look out for their own. Happy Thanksgiving and God Bless goes out to the Mothers of this group and especially to the members of the family who have gone through this extremely tough and sad ordeal.

Championships

This past Saturday, three local runners participated at the All-State Boys and Girls Cross Country Championship Meet held at the Franklin Park Course in Dorchester. Wilmington resident Lizzie McDermott, fresh off her second pace finish in the Eastern Mass Division 6 race a week before, was the top overall finisher of the three locals taking 41st in the Division 2 Girls race. The Austin Prep junior finished with a time of 20:09.

In the same race, Wilmington's Callie O'Connell, an eighth grader, finished 64th overall with a time of 20:48.

"I think the experience was great for her down the road," said Wildcat head coach Tom Bradley. "These are the best and girls that are off to the Footlocker Nationals next week. I think Callie accomplished a great deal and will accomplish a lot more before she is done."

The third local is Tewksbury High junior Brian Amaral, who finished 102nd in the Division 1 Boys race with a time of 17:20.

Merrimack Valley Conference Championship title and then went on to defeat Westford (3-0), Lincoln-Sudbury (3-0), Weston (4-2), Acton-Boxboro (1-0), Duxbury (2-0) and Longmeadow to capture the state title.

"This year we were just more aware of what we had to do at practices and games," said Noone when asked about being a returning state champion. "The five seniors were all motivational and supportive to the younger girls. The parents continued to support. It was difficult because we put pressure on ourselves to try to maintain at our best and other teams appeared to play their hardest against us."

This is the fourth state championship Noone has been a part of. She was an assistant softball coach at WHS during the team's back-to-back Division 2 state titles in 1993 and '94, and then shortly after that she was named the head field hockey coach at WHS, serving three seasons compiling a record of 30-14-11, including winning two league titles. She resigned after the 1997 season and took the same position at Andover, taking over a program that hadn't had a winning season in 20 years. In her 14 years at Andover, Noone has compiled a record of 207-39-39, giving her a career coaching mark of 237-53-50, including 11 league titles and two state championship titles.

Last year Andover finished with a perfect 24-0-0 record, and this year the team finished 22-0-2 with two ties coming against Tewksbury and Central Catholic.

"I wasn't aware of a specific number of games that we've won, but recently someone mentioned we hadn't lost a regular season game since 2009," said Noone, who is still a teacher in the Wilmington school department. "It's incredible considering the factors that injuries, illnesses, weather related problems and stuff like that. I had a great group of kids who maintained focus and were totally committed to the season and their team."

Andover gave up just two goals during the incredible post season run which included knocking off previous Division 1 state champion teams Lincoln-Sudbury and Weston.

"When I saw the tournament bracket I was worried, but I realized we needed to take each game as it came," said Noone. "We played some outstanding teams, starting with Westford, Lincoln-Sudbury, Weston, and finally Acton-Boxboro for the North Finals. After we beat them, we had to travel to Westwood to play Duxbury - who just beat Walpole, a multiple state champion team. We were so thrilled with the way the girls played and their confidence level. We thought we had another chance (to win the state title)."

But throughout the Division 1 state title game, Noone thought like everyone else in attendance that the Warriors were letting a chance slip right through their fingers. Andover had 22 offensive corners and put 20 shots on net, until Julie LeBlanc scored the lone goal of the game with just under 15 minutes left in the game.

"We had so much trust in our defense that we were hoping to just get lucky with a goal, and hang onto the lead," said Noone. "Having 22 corners tires out the defensive team, but can frustrate offensive players. But the girls kept plugging, and we tried to swing the ball more often. Longmeadow's goalie was very skilled, and their defense was relentless so direct hits would not work, so we had to look for other options."

The other options were having LeBlanc find the back of the net giving Andover its second straight Division 1 state championship. An incredible accomplishment for such a remarkable coach and person - congratulations are in order for Maureen Noone and the entire Andover program.

Meghan Sheehy wasn't able to express her thoughts on the seven seniors who will be leaving her program. So here goes:

"Robin Hollenbeck and Caitlin McDonough were the two captains this year and led the team very well," said Sheehy. "They kept the girls up and motivated even when they were down. They played the majority of the games and were a great addition to the starting line up. These two girls are prime examples of what being captains is all about."

"Kelley Wilcox and Emma Saporito were key players for the back row defense. They went in with out hesitation and made the key plays to keep us in the game. Both girls hustled after every ball and never stopped till the whistle. Emma and Kelley were a huge part of the wildcat defense and their positions will be hard to fill in the upcoming season."

"Ashley White came back to volleyball for her final season and played her heart out. She was a very strong outside hitter as well as a defensive player. Ashley is a very solid, smooth player and made many difficult plays look easy. Her effort and attitude will be missed but we were very happy and lucky to have Ashley join the team for her final high school volleyball season."

"Kerry Murphy kept the girls up and enthusiastic. When she was asked to go in, she did so without hesitation. Kerry had the strongest serve on the team and when she was on, she was untouchable. Her happy attitude and presence will be greatly missed."

And Lauren Sullivan was a middle hitter alongside Robin and Lauren Bennett. Lauren Sullivan had the ability to make big plays with little hits. She would go up strong and tap the ball over the net catching the other team off guard. She would give her full effort every time she stepped foot on the court and never let a ball hit the floor without diving to save it. She was a true team player and her desire to be better pushed her teammates to do the same.

"(Assistant) Coach (Kylie) Magee and I had a blast coaching the seniors over the past two years. They are a great group of girls and athletes. All seven brought something different to the team and will be greatly missed."

FRESHMEN GIRLS SOCCER

For Ray Robinson, coach of the Wilmington Freshman Girls Soccer Team, every year it's about the improvement and effort the girls on the team put forth. With a record of 2-5-6, Robinson feels that the numbers do not accurately represent the team's season.

"The record was much better in the last half of the season than it was in the first half of the season," Robinson remarked.

The two team captains, Rachel Johansson and Brittany Abbott, both forwards, were given credit for their effort from the start of the season until the every end.

"[They] did a great job this year," said Robinson.

As for important games, Robinson said they were all important but towards the end of the season, the last three or four games, "We actually started to play as a team. We started to develop as a team."

The forwards for the team were Victoria Ferreria and the two captains, Johansson and Abbot. Wilmington's midfield was held by Lianna Natola, Ashleigh Sullivan, Victoria Schultes, Meghan Stemmler, Kristina Nicoli, Bethany Kane, and Jillian Doyle. On defense were Krista Tedesco, Heather Trites, Ruby Miller-Nuzzo, and Abigail Chase. Then playing multiple positions including defense and goalie included Lauran Mulligan, Sjöbhan Collins, and Bridget Santos.

Robinson has been coaching soccer for 33 years. He was in charge of the first girls junior varsity team at Wilmington High School, back in the early 1990s.

After holding that position for four years, he coached at Minuteman Tech and later became the President of Massachusetts Youth Soccer. This season, he was asked to rejoin the Wilmington coaching staff as the freshmen coach, and he jumped at the opportunity.

"This is the first experience for them on a high school. This was the opportunity to learn what high school sports are all about," Robinson explained.

The challenge with a one-year team is possibly the short amount of time the players and coaches spend together. It was crucial that the girls used teamwork throughout the season.

"With a freshmen team, every year it's a brand new team. They're a great bunch of kids," Robinson said. "I'm very proud of what they did this season."

JV GIRLS SOCCER

The Wilmington High School Girls Junior Varsity Soccer Team finished their season with a solid 8-4-4 record. The wins are slightly less than the past two seasons, especially since the strong team went undefeated in the 2010 season, 12-0-6.

"The kids and I think it was a successful season," said Coach Mary Jo English, "They played prettier and prettier soccer as the season progressed and they played their best games against the toughest opponents."

By far, the most memorable game of the season to English was the team's matchup against Stoneham, their second time facing them that season. With five minutes left in the game and losing 2-0, it looked like a repeat of their 4-1 loss earlier that season. In that time of pressure, the team pulled themselves together and courageously scored two goals to tie the game, 2-2.

"It was a gutsy, intense and determined effort," English reflected, "That game was one of the best games that I have been a part of in five years of (coaching here in Wilmington)."

On defense, Alliy Gemellaro and Jane Farrell, juniors, were fantastic contributors over their past two years on the team. Collectively over those two years, the team had 13 shutouts and allowed only 30 goals in total. Other defense players include sophomores: Kate Cowden, Sam DePasquale, Kerry Ryan, and Erin Hurley.

Midfielders Amy Scott, a junior and sophomore Emily Bamberg had experience previously on the high school team, while freshmen, Kristen Luise, Amber Peach, Caroline Newhouse, and Jess Buske, were new to the program.

Offensively, the team was incredibly successful. Juniors were Brittany Cavanaugh, Gianna Tummino, and Jordan Malatesta. The others were sophomore Taylor Perella, and freshmen Jess Hogan and Shelby McHugh.

"This year our scoring was very balanced. Fifteen of the 20 players on the team scored goals this season," English explained.

English also expressed her admiration for the leadership of the juniors on the team, Tummino, Gemellaro, Farrell, Malatesta, Cavanaugh and Scott.

"They knew when to be all business and when we could have a good time," English said.

The great aspects of the girls on the team were their attentiveness and humbleness. They had the determination and drive to win as well as the willingness to learn new skills and improve on old ones.

"I like the challenge of creating an environment of success regardless of the talent pool and the challenge of figuring out how to extract the best performances out of 20 different personalities in a limited number of weeks," said English.

College Notebook River Hawks fall in East Region title game

Senior defender Hannah Merullo (Wakefield, Mass.) scored in the 84th minute to pull No. 4 UMass Lowell from a two-goal deficit, but it was not enough as the River Hawks suffered a 2-1 loss at No. 2 Saint Rose Friday at the NCAA Division II Women's Soccer Tournament East Region Championship at the Plumeri Sports Complex.

With the loss, UMass Lowell ends its season with an 11-6-4 record.

Saint Rose scored a goal in either half - one in the 34th minute and again in the 72nd - before Merullo gave the River Hawks a lifeline in the 84th.

Senior midfielder Maddy Bissaillon (Merrimac, Mass.) steered an out-swinging corner kick through a crowd in the box to the far post. Merullo possessed at the top left corner of the box and sidefooted inside the far post to cut the lead in half.

After Saint Rose nearly went ahead 3-1 - senior forward Gianna D'Errico broke free down the left but was thwarted by freshman keeper Jane Hatzikonstantis (Tewksbury, Mass.) wide right - the River Hawks had an opportunity to level on the counterattack.

UMass Lowell played a 4-5-1 formation in the first half, against the wind, with the hope of getting to the half without conceding.

Saint Rose came out firing, however, and kept Hatzikonstantis on edge with four shots and four corner kicks in the opening 30 minutes.

The Golden Knights capitalized in the 34th minute when, after a failed clearance, senior midfielder Christina Cuffari took possession and passed to sophomore forward Carmelina Puopolo on the right flank. Puopolo crossed to freshman forward Brittany Barry who tapped home unmarked at the six-yard box.

UMass Lowell began to enjoy more possession in the late minutes of the first half and early minutes of the second. Saint Rose eventually won back the run of play and nearly went 2-0 ahead in the 66th behind an attempt by Puopolo, which Hatzikonstantis anticipated well with a diving stop to her right.

The Golden Knights kept up the pressure and it paid off in the 72nd with Cuffari and Puopolo combining again. Cuffari crossed to Puopolo streaking down the left side of the box and slotted left-footed inside the far post.

Saint Rose outshot the River Hawks 15-4 overall (8-0 in the first half) and 9-3 on target. Hatzikonstantis stopped seven shots while Gerski had two saves for the Golden Knights.

***

Chad Ruhwedel (San Diego, Calif.) scored a goal and two assists, while Doug Carr (Hanover, Mass.) made 16 saves for his first collegiate shutout in a 4-0 River Hawk win over Massachusetts in front of 4,924 fans on Saturday night in the Tsongas Center.

UMass Lowell improved to 6-4-0 on the year, surpassing its 2010-11 win total, and 4-3-0 in Hockey East play. The Minutemen had their four-game unbeaten streak snapped as they fell to 4-5-3 overall and 2-5-3 in conference action.

The clubs skated to a scoreless first period that featured a back-and-forth approach

Pendenza and Willey continue to compete

from each team. The River Hawks nearly notched the game's first goal as Zack Kamrass (Atlanta, Ga.) rung a shot off of the post with 2:03 remaining in the period on a power play.

What started as a night short on scoring was flipped on its head over the final 40 minutes as UMass Lowell lit the lamp four times.

Senior David Vallorani (Hamilton, Ont.) started off the fireworks with a power play tally at 10:44 into the second. After collecting a pass from Ruhwedel at the near point, Vallorani skated in a few strides and placed a perfect wrist shot over Steve Mastalerz's (North Andover, Mass.) shoulder.

Just over three minutes later, fellow senior Tim Corcoran (Milton, Mass.) scored his first collegiate goal. Sophomore Joseph Pendenza (Wilmington, Mass.) sent the puck from the corner to Corcoran at the point. The veteran defenseman spotted traffic at the net and flung a shot through the bodies and into the mesh at 13:38.

Massachusetts was able to shut down the attack for most of the third period, but UMass Lowell broke back through in the final five minutes. With the teams skating four-on-four, Ruhwedel blocked a shot in the River Hawks' zone, collected the puck and skated the length of the ice to beat Mastalerz with a top-shelf shot at 15:01.

UMass Lowell potted one final power play tally with 2:29 remaining. Junior Riley Wetmore (Swanton, Vt.) skated from behind the net, hit the goalie with a shot, then put the rebound back in for the goal.

Standing tall to the task, goaltender Carr made 16 saves and blanked five power play chances to record his first career shutout—the River Hawks' first since Feb. 26, 2010.

Massachusetts' Mastalerz stopped 30-of-34 shots as he fell to 1-1-0 on the year while allowing two UMass Lowell power play goals in five chances.

The Plymouth State University wrestling team placed sixth out of 15 schools on Saturday at the Doug Parker Invitational, hosted by Springfield College.

The Panther contingent recorded 63.5 points to place sixth, just ahead of the US Merchant Marine Academy (62.5) and just behind fourth-place Rhode Island College (69) and fifth-place Wesleyan University (67). SUNY Brockport (115) took top honors in the team scoring, with Springfield and Stevens Tech tied for second with 91.5 points.

Senior Mike Willey (Tewksbury, Mass.) turned in the top performance for Plymouth State, capturing the 149-pound weight class, a bracket that included 36 wrestlers. Willey went 5-0 in the tournament with five decisions, winning the title bout, 4-3, over Martin Bell of USMMA, who is sixth in the national rankings. Willey, who is 10th in the national rankings, is 6-1 this season and 70-21 in his career.

The Panthers, ranked fifth in New England, will be back on the mat on Wednesday, Nov. 30, with a dual meet at Rhode Island College, which is ranked fourth in the same poll.

Tewksbury (5-5) hosts Wilmington (6-3)

Doucette Field,
Tewksbury,
10:00 AM

This could be a wild one

This Thursday morning will mark the 78th annual battle between the Wilmington Wildcats and the Tewksbury Redmen Football teams. Once again there's a lot at stake in this game. Although the records may not indicate that, certainly this game has the making of one truly special meeting.

The Wildcats enter the game with a 6-3 record, an absolutely incredible feat considering the team lost almost its entire starting line-up from last year's team, and also competed in a very competitive Middlesex League for the first time. During this season, Mike Barry's team has reeled off several huge victories, none bigger than Week Ten's opponent Burlington, while the Wildcats also knocked off Masconomet, one of the top Division 2 teams in Eastern Mass, in a non-league game.

Throughout the season, the Wildcats have been led by senior running back John Parsons, who has rushed for 1,283 yards with 14 touchdowns, while adding 122 receiving yards and two more scores, giving him 1,405 yards from scrimmage and 16 touchdowns on the season. In nine games this season, Parsons has rushed for over 100 yards six times, and has rushed for over 200 three times.

While the Tewksbury Redmen will be looking to contain Parsons as much as possible, the Wildcats will have the daunting task of trying to stop the powerful running attack of the Redmen, led by its dynamic duo, running back Chris Bettano and quarterback Kevin Saunders. This season Bettano has rushed for 1,174 yards with 14 touchdowns, and six times he has rushed for 100-plus yards and twice he surpassed 2000 yards in a game. Saunders uses his legs on nearly every play and has rushed for 346 yards with six scores, while also tossing for 213 yards in the air. The two of them have helped Brian Aylward's team reel off exciting victories over Andover, Lowell, Methuen and Central Catholic, while falling to two of the top teams in the entire state in Chelmsford and Lincoln-Sudbury.

The Redmen enter this game with a two-game losing streak at 5-5 and have another game four days later when it takes on Reading in the first round of the Division 2 A playoffs on Tuesday night. However, the Redmen will be focused on beating the Wildcats for the fourth time in the past five years, while the Wildcats would like to avenge last year's loss.

This match-up should be another thriller - expect Parsons and Bettano to match big rush after big rush throughout the entire game, and also look for many, many trick plays by both teams. Both teams like the halfback option and you could see it early and often.

To read all about the upcoming Turkey Day battle with team previews, features on Saunders and Bettano as well as Wilmington's Alex Furlong and Matt Ferreira please turn inside this entire section for many stories. Also included is a story on the 50th anniversary of the 1961 Wildcats who won the Suburban League Championship title.

Enter game with four game winning streak

Wildcats ready for another big challenge

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

It is a rivalry steeped in tradition. High school football teams from Wilmington and Tewksbury have squared off 77 times on Thanksgiving Day with some epic games as part of their illustrious history. There have been league championships, playoff berths and undefeated seasons decided in many of these contests, particularly when the teams were both in the Merrimack Valley Conference.

There will no such stakes this season when the teams square off Thursday morning in Tewksbury for the 78th Annual meeting, with Tewksbury having already clinched a spot in the Division 2 playoffs and Wilmington narrowly missing out on the Middlesex League Small championship and Division 2A playoff berth, but it hardly matters when these two teams get together.

One thing that is at stake every season, and is once again on the line this season is bragging rights, and that's plenty of motivation for Wilmington High as they look to improve on the 6-3 record and four game winning streak they will bring into Thursday's game.

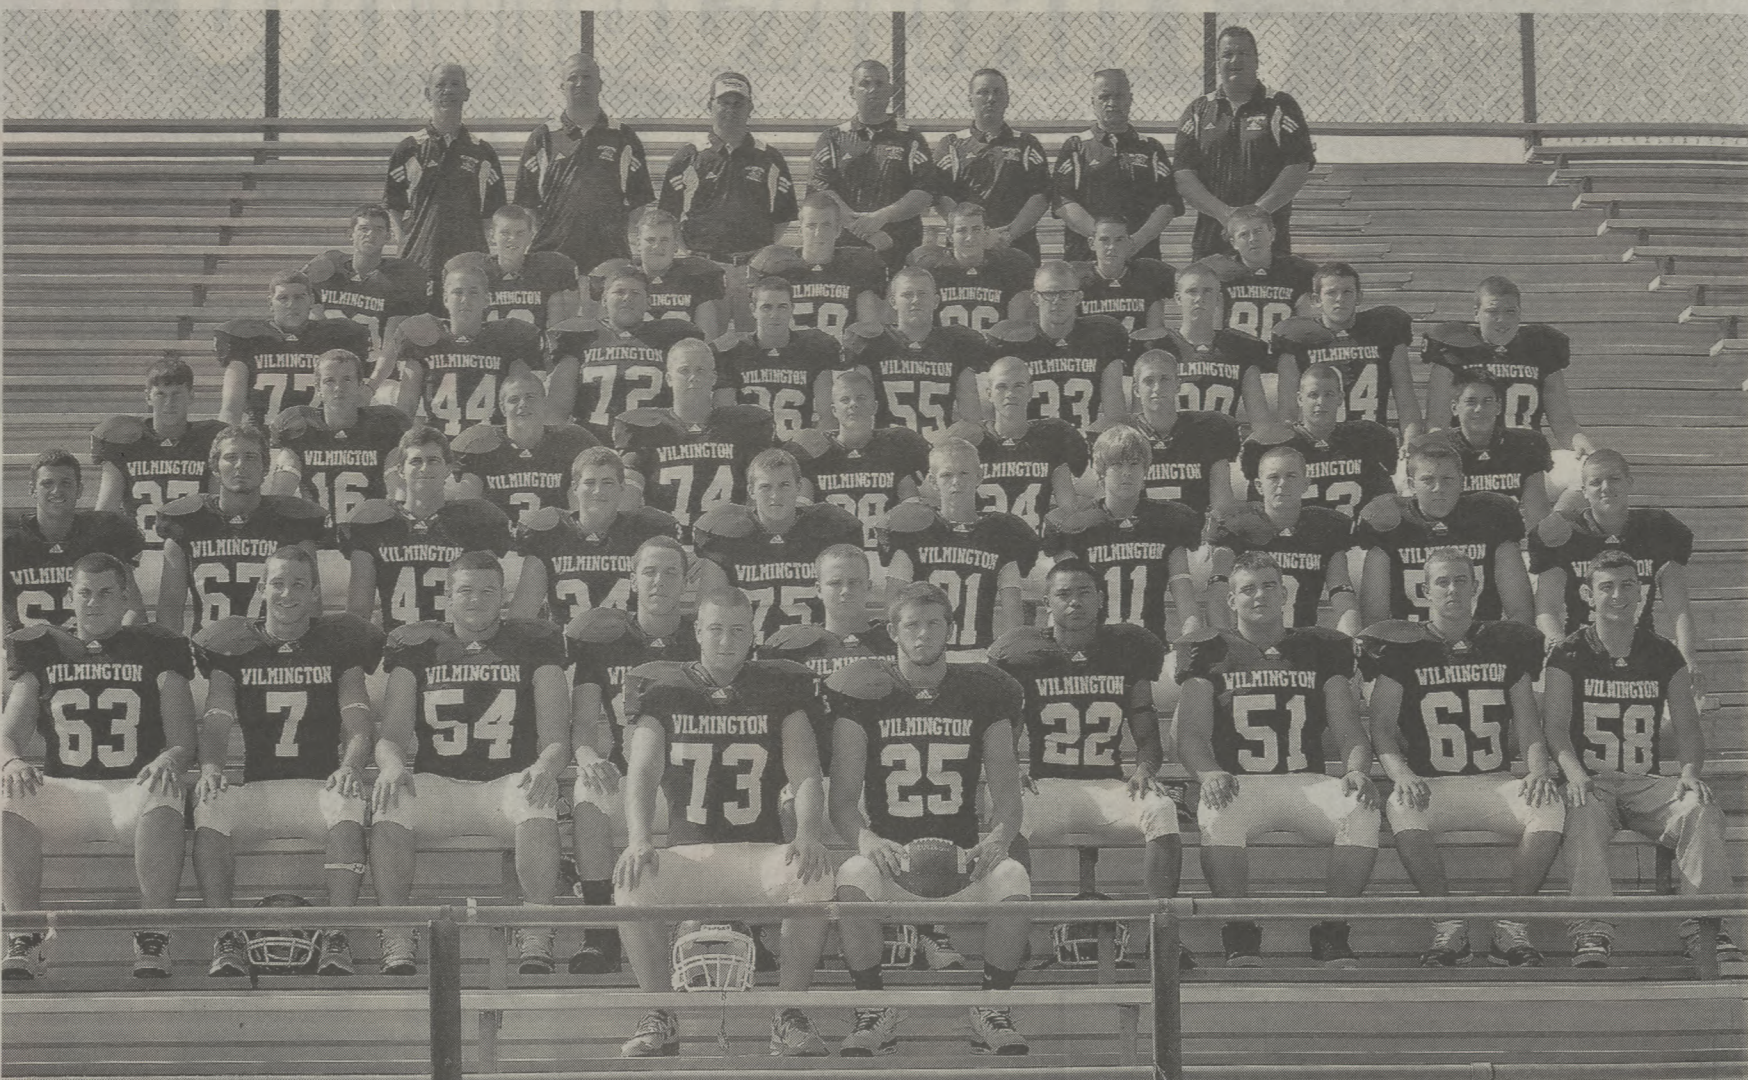

"You can almost break it down to a one game season," Wilmington coach Mike Barry said. "You don't want to say that because it is just one game, but it is an event in itself. It doesn't matter if it is a league game or a non-league game, it is still huge because it is Thanksgiving."

As of late, the Wildcats have been treating every game as a huge game and the results have been outstanding. Since suffering a 35-7 thumping at the hands of eventual Middlesex League Small champion Wakefield last in week five for their third loss in a row, the Wildcats have been on a roll, winning four straight games, including impressive wins over Middlesex League rivals Burlington and Watertown in the past two weeks.

Wilmington coach Mike Barry has been proud of the way his team has turned their season around.

"These kids have been a good group to be around all year long and they have been playing very well these last four games," Barry said. "Our offense is moving the ball and our defense has also been playing well. They have been giving us a great effort and have gotten better as the year has gone on."

Tewksbury, on the other hand, has not had as positive results as of late, having

The 2011 Wilmington High School Varsity Football team currently has a 6-3 overall record, which includes five wins in its first year competing in the Middlesex League. Wilmington would like nothing better than to defeat Tewksbury and finish with a very successful 7-3 record.

dropped two straight games to Haverhill and Chelmsford to drop their overall record to 5-5 on the season.

Barry however, is not phased by the Redmen's recent losses. He knows the team he will be facing has qualified for post season play for a reason and he knows his team will have to be at their best if they are going to reverse last year's results when they dropped a 26-21 decision.

"They have had a great year. They qualified for the playoffs in the MVC which is an excellent league," Barry said. "They have had some injuries as of late and like most teams if you have injuries, especially when you are playing teams like Chelmsford, it can be tough to win."

"They have beaten Lowell, Andover and Central Catholic this season and they lost a close game to Billerica, so you know how good they are. We have been talking about that with our kids."

If the Wildcats are going to beat the Redmen this year, they know that first and foremost they will have to contain a powerful Tewksbury rushing attack led by senior running back Chris Bettano and complemented nicely by the running abilities of quarterback Kevin Saunders.

Wilmington's Season

vs Arlington	Won 28-14
vs Masconomet	Won 7-3
vs Lexington	Lost 21-14
vs Woburn	Lost 39-29
vs Wakefield	Lost 35-7
vs Stoneham	Won 20-14
vs Melrose	Won 19-14
vs Watertown	Won 47-14
vs Burlington	Won 33-32

Both players were dinged up during Tewksbury's loss to Chelmsford last week, but Barry is planning on seeing both players in the field on Thanksgiving and he knows that if they do not stop them, they will not come out on top.

"The number one thing we have to do is we have to tackle, and what I mean by that is that when we get there we have to wrap the runner up," Barry said. "Bettano is so good because he will break the first tackle so we will need two, three or four guys to the ball on each play."

And while Bettano will certainly get the bulk of the work running the ball assuming he is healthy, having a dual threat like Saunders in the backfield makes the Redmen that much more dangerous.

"Saunders is a tough kid," Barry said. "He makes all the throws, but he can also lower his shoulder and make the big play running the ball. He could be a running back."

Of course the Wildcats have a pretty impressive pair of threats of their own in the backfield with seniors Matt Ferreira at quarterback and John Parsons at running back.

Ferreira has thrown for 571 yards and seven touchdowns, while Parsons has rushed for 1,283 yards on the season and scored 14 touchdowns overall, so the Redmen must be equally prepared to stop them.

Barry will be matching wits on Thanksgiving with Tewksbury coach Brian Aylward, just as he has for the past four seasons as head coach of the Wildcats, and it is a challenge he knows he must be ready for. "I have a lot of respect for Brian. He's always got a tough, hard nosed football team," Barry said. "I give Brian a lot of credit because he stays true to himself and who he is, but he always throws in a couple of wrinkles so you have to be ready for that. I am sure he will have his team ready."

Some of the players that will be most ready to play on Thursday will be the seniors from both teams. While the Redmen will have at least one more game after Thanksgiving, it will be the final game in the football career of the 11 seniors for the Wildcats and Barry knows the game will have an extra special meaning for that group.

"It means a lot to them to play well in this game," Barry said. "They all know about the tradition and I know they want to go out on a positive note. I know they will be working hard this week as they have all year long to get ready for this game."

Barry himself will be participating in his 16th Tewksbury-Wilmington Thanksgiving Day game as an assistant coach and now a head coach, and just like his players, he is well aware of the tradition that this game brings with it.

"It is a great rivalry that has been going on for almost 80 years and we have had some great games over the years," Barry said. "It is one of those games where you just want to line up and play hard."

"There are a lot of parents who went to Wilmington High and that tradition carries over with them and it is the same on the Tewksbury side with Bob Aylward being there for so long and now Brian taking over for his father and having his son on the team now. It is a great tradition and I am very happy to be part of it."

Co-Captain a key two-way player

Alex hopes to Fur-long winning season

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

At this time next year Alex Furlong may very well be in the middle of his first semester at West Point. The Wilmington High senior co-captain who has starred on both the offensive line and nose tackle for the Wildcats this season is in the process of completing the admissions process at the prestigious university where he intends to follow in the footsteps of his father, Michael, who is a West Point graduate.

One of the missions of West Point is to develop future leaders and in that regard they have a perfect candidate for admissions in Furlong, who has proven over and over again this season to the Wildcats that he is already a leader in the making.

Furlong's father has been a huge influence in his decision to attend West Point and when you hear him talk about the inspiration he has received from his father, it is impossible not to think that he must be quite the source of inspiration for his teammates.

"My Dad went to West Point and he has always been a role model for me," said Alex Furlong, who also finished fourth in the 189-pound weight class during last year's Division 3 wrestling tournament. "He overcame so much to be able to get there and that has been a big inspiration for me. I feel like my Dad planted the seeds for me so that I can hopefully attend one of the best universities in the country and then get to serve my country."

Wilmington head coach Mike Barry for one, has no doubt that Furlong already has all the tools necessary to be a successful leader. While leading on the football field is certainly not the same as leading in the military, Furlong's hard work and dedication will serve him well in any field.

"Alex is not a big rah-rah guy, but he is a great leader by example," Barry said. "He plays with a big motor and the other kids see how hard he works and want to follow his example. He is a great kid to have on the team."

Furlong's leadership was never more on display than when the Wildcats were going through a three-game losing streak in the middle of the season, and needed to be kept on a positive path.

"Losing is not the best feeling in the world, especially in football where you are sacrificing your body on every play," Furlong said. "But what got us through is that we did not fall apart and we just tried to move on and improve. It all started to turn around in the Stoneham game when we were going against (former WHS) coach (Bob) Almeida. That helped spark us and we just turned it around from there and we have kept improving since then. Hopefully we will peak on Thanksgiving."

If the Wildcats are to peak on Thanksgiving and come up with a big win, Furlong will no doubt be a big part of it, and he is eagerly anticipating the final game of his high school career.

"I am very excited," Furlong said. "I have been playing football since I was a little kid and everything has built up to this, so it is so exciting."

And while being a senior will certainly bring special meaning to the game, it will not change Furlong's approach as he prepares for the game.

"I have always played with older kids, even in Pop Warner because I did not make the weight limit, so I know how important it is for the seniors so I treat every game as important," Furlong said. "This is my last time putting on my helmet and playing high school football so it is extra special, but I will not do anything different than I normally would do because I prepare just as hard for every game."

Furlong's preparation has been evident on the defensive side of the ball with his 32 tackles on the season, four of them for losses, along with his four sacks. He has also made his usual impact on offense where he has been a three year starter on the offensive line.

"Alex is very well known for his play on the offensive line, but the other coaches in the league this season have been talking about how well he has played on defense," Barry said. "He is a big, rough kid and he gets a big push. He plays football going forward, which is what you want on defense. He gets a good pass rush on the inside and he is able to make a lot of meaningful plays for us."

As well as he has played on defense, his play on the offensive line has not suffered at all.

"He is the type of kid we can run behind and make big plays," Barry said. "He is probably a better run blocker than pass blocker because he is so aggressive and his physical style of play is huge for us. He is kind of a bull in a china shop and in football that is a good thing."

And while most players

prefer to play on the defensive side of the ball where they are laying the big hits, Furlong actually loves both offense and defense, possibly because he is making plenty of big hits while paving the way for his teammates.

"I have always liked offense better but this year at nose tackle defense has been much more exciting for me," Furlong said. "I have to react to the offense and make a play and I love to do that and I love to get the job done."

Getting the job done on Thanksgiving of course will mean knocking off a Tewksbury team that is headed to the playoffs and erasing the memory of last year's 26-21 loss to the Redmen.

Furlong feels that his team is ready for the challenge.

"We have been playing well, but if we want to win we have to show up and play our game," Furlong said. "As long as we show up to play we can play with anyone. As long as we do that, we have the skills and abilities to win. We are not going to the playoffs, but we would love to send Tewksbury to the playoffs with a 5-6 record."

Tradition means everything for Tewksbury

Redmen can't and won't overlook rivals

By RICK COOKE
Sports Correspondent

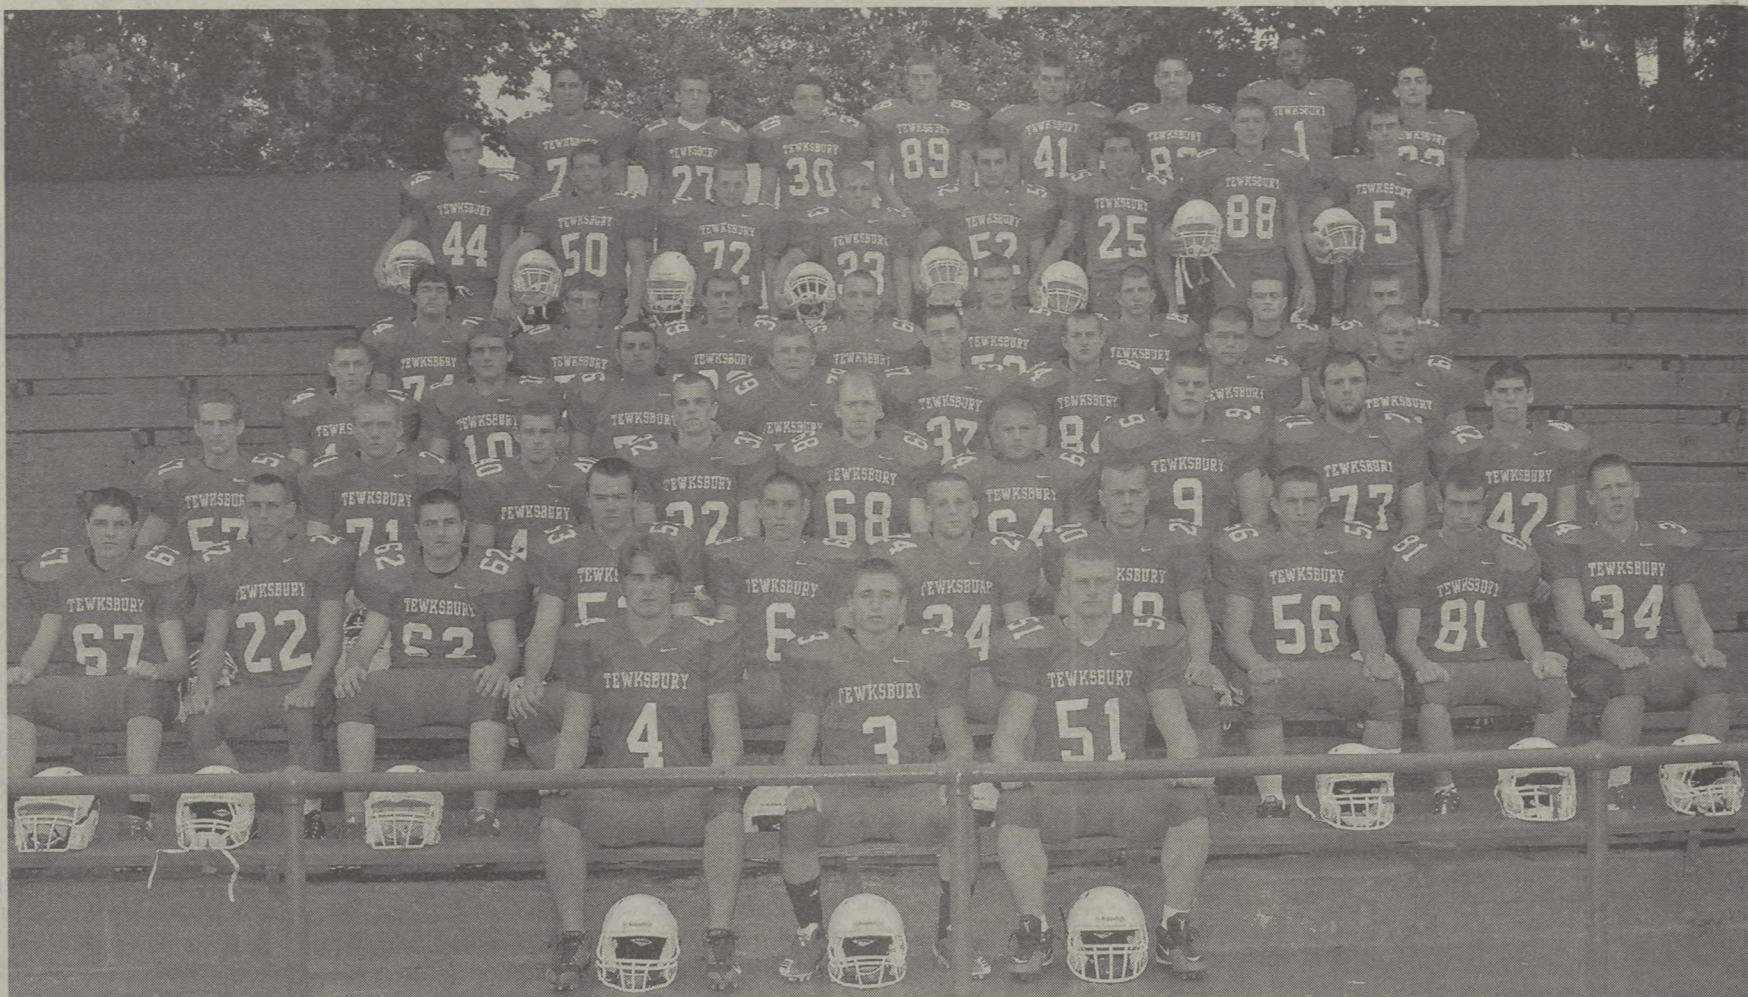

Intense highs and disappointing, often self-inflicted lows have marked this rather up-and-down season for the Tewksbury High School football team. Yet, here they are survivors all preparing for the 78th annual Thanksgiving morning tussle with the arch-rival Wilmington High School Wildcats Thursday morning at Doucette Field. The Redmen were winners a year ago, but that all means nothing now, and surprisingly enough Tewksbury players and coach Brian Aylward are telling people that no one is thinking past the Wildcats to the team's playoff appearance at Reading High School next week.

Tewksbury wants to hoist the Thanksgiving trophy on its' home field Thursday morning before even getting around to the really hard-core post-season preparation. A victory over Wilmington means that the Redmen (5-5) will be above .500 for the season and a win over Wilmington also will rank right up there with victories over Andover, Central Catholic, Dracut, Lowell and Methuen. It is all about the rivalry with Wilmington. Even after all these years.

"I think that they are starting to get revved-up and excited about the significance of this game in terms of the legacy that they will leave here," offers Aylward. "They have an opportunity, regardless of the record or anything else, to do some very special things. I think that it's going to be critical that they go out and play their best on Thanksgiving. They know what's in front of them and that's where all the focus is on Thursday."

"This game means the world," says senior quarterback and tri-captain Kevin Saunders. "This is my last game on this field. It's going to hit me after the game and I'm not going to leave any regrets on that field. I'm just going to leave it all out there."

Saunders (345 yards rushing, six TD's) is the trigger man behind an offense that is ground-game top heavy, and with good reason. The Redmen have rushed for 1,930 yards this season and have a variety of skill-sets at every position out of the backfield. All of the backs can run, block and even throw the football. The leader of this talented pack is senior tri-captain Chris Bettano, who has rushed for 1,174 yards and 14 touchdowns. Bettano is also a big factor in the kick return game for Tewksbury. The senior has plenty of help in Dan Altavesta (55-339, 3 TD's) freshman fullback James Sullivan (19-94, one TD) and the emerging talent of Eddie Matovu (10-59), who has also become a factor on defense for Tewksbury.

Senior wide receiver Frank McLaughlin has been multidimensional for the Redmen as well, catching three touchdown passes, sparking drives with key catches and coming up with big plays on defense at cornerback. In fact, Altavesta and McLaughlin just might be the two 'secret' weapons for the Redmen defensively, roaming the field and blowing up plays.

None of this vaunted ground attack gets started without rock-solid play from the offensive line, and what was thought to be a possible weak link when the season began is now a strong point thanks to the play of guards Ryan Eatherton and Derek Tarpey (tri-captain), tackles Evan Conway and Frank McInnis, anchored by center Brendan O'Keefe. Tight-end Chris London rounds out the front line for the Redmen. This lineup is senior-dominated, with the fullback Sullivan the lone underclassman. Junior Matt Blaisdell has handled the placekicking duties for Tewksbury and is also tight-end and a linebacker.

Defensively, the Redmen have seniors everywhere in the lineup with the exception of sophomore defensive end Matovu and junior tackle Christian Taylor. Also seeing time at the defensive tackle positions will be Conway and Eatherton, with London at the other defensive end. The nose-guard is Mike Davidian. The linebackers Thursday will be Tarpey and senior Nick Winn, while the defensive backfield will be manned by Saunders at free safety, Brad Gahagan at strong safety, with McLaughlin and Scott Thurlow at the cornerback positions.

As the season progressed, injuries caused some depth problems, and then there was the nagging dilemma about what to do about key penalties that had the team fighting itself through some of the defeats- and even the victories. Through it all, this team battled back and made the playoffs, marking a very memorable season for Aylward, who will be making his first-ever playoff appearance as a head coach after having been there as a player and an assistant.

"This team will be remembered for their resiliency," says Aylward. "They've been knocked down and given another chance more times than any Tewksbury team that I can remember, not just in terms of the season, but individual games. They've been dead-to-rights a couple of times and they have refocused, buckled down and got after it. This group is very resilient. They've been that way throughout their careers. They are able to adapt to different situations as good as any team that I've had. They have also had a tendency to hurt themselves as much as any team that I've had. Usually that's an indication of self-discipline, but in our case a lot of the penalties that have hurt us in different games have been effort-based."

Never one to bash an official, Aylward has watched his team earn a reputation as a group that is very willing to get in that last shot after the whistle. The referees are obviously watching the post-play contact closely when it comes to Tewksbury, and the Redmen have paid the price.

"We've got to be more savvy and not retaliate on that cheap-shot stuff," admits Aylward. "It seems like we've been on the wrong end of a lot of those exchanges throughout the season. It does boil down to focus and the way that the game is being called. Those are all savvy things that you develop through years of playing, and a lot of these guys came into this season with very little varsity experience. At this point the expectations are that they are veteran guys and we have to prepare based on everything that we've seen this season."

The Redmen may be play-off-bound, but they know that the Wildcats, led by standout running back John Parsons and a very quick-off-the-ball offensive line, are almost a mirror image of Tewksbury with their ability to dominate the line of scrimmage. Aylward also knows that this game will have playoff intensity from start to finish.

"At this point in the season everybody is 0-0. This game is bigger than them-it's bigger than us. I think that we all understand what a privilege it is to be out on the field and play in this game," said Aylward. "Parsons is a great player, but we understand that it's not basketball-it's not going to happen with just one guy, it's only going to happen if you've got guys in the trenches that can make it happen and that's what they have. They've got eleven guys working hard on every play.

They are very good and they are very balanced, just like Wilmington usually is."

There will be no immediate plans for a Reading game plan Thursday morning. That will have to wait until at least that first course of Thanksgiving dinner, when the talk will shift to the next Tewksbury challenge-at-hand. For now, it's all about the Wildcats and hoisting that trophy in the middle of what promises to be a very muddy field.

"That's (the playoff game) a great opportunity, and we will begin thinking about it at the end of the game Thursday morning," said Aylward.

Running back having a season

Bettano's motor fires up Tewksbury

By RICK COOKE
Sports Correspondent

When the going gets tough for Tewksbury High School football, the Redmen quite often turn to 5'7", 160-pound senior running back Chris Bettano. The tri-captain falls right into that long-line of TMHS running backs with that 'wiggle' to the outside taking a pitch around end on the power sweep with often devastating results.

When a back rushes for 1,174 yards, 14 touchdowns and three conversions good for 90 points, he is doing something very right, but what Bettano does best is power for that extra yard. All of that extra effort really counts when it comes to fourth quarter crunch time, when opponents are wilting and young Mr. Bettano is busting a gut for that extra five yards and a big first down.

Bettano has good burst, with a powerful leg drive that often catches defenses by surprise while at the same time reminding the TMHS' football faithful of some old-timey Redmen backs like Rick Mackey, Jay Petros, Frank Fay, Tom Horgan and most recently Joel Altavesta and Steve Kasprzak, a current member of the TMHS coaching staff.

As a junior, Bettano had already caught the veteran eye of retired TMHS football coach Bob Aylward, who was into 'watch this kid' mode very early in Bettano's Tewksbury High School football career. One of the qualities that this current TMHS coaching staff hangs its' hat on is this senior's worth ethic.

This year especially, Bettano made the case that he embodies the team's 'tough as nails' philosophy, battling through ankle and most recently back problems to keep spinning and surging for that extra yard.

Bettano makes a genuine effort to pass the sugar out among his teammates, especially his offensive line and a quarterback in Kevin Saunders, who matches Bettano in head-first running intensity. With games coming up against traditional Thanksgiving rival Wilmington and a tough first-round playoff opponent in Reading, Bettano knows that the future is now. He expects his teammates to play well and win both games and he generally gets what he expects through sheer force of will. He likes where his teammates are right now as they position themselves for a big game Thursday morning at Doucette Field.

"It feels pretty good, but other people have to contribute for a winning effort," noted Bettano before a practice last week. "I know I'm like the workhorse, and they like to give me the ball most of the time, but I expect good plays from the other running backs and Kevin. And I just expect an all-around game from the offensive line."

Bettano never uses injuries as an excuse. He was limited by a back sprain in the loss at Chelmsford, but appears ready to roll Thursday morning.

"In that game I pulled a muscle in my back, but it's getting better. It's healing right now."

Then it was off to practice, but not before saying that he fully expected this current TMHS football team to perform well before the season began.

"I expected this team to do good. I knew we were going to make the playoffs from the get-go," said Bettano. "I knew that we had a team that could put it all together this season. The MVC is a tough league. You have to come out playing hard every single week. You can't slack-off any week. If you come out not ready to play, you can easily get caught. People can beat you in this league. It's a stretch. It's a marathon, not a sprint. You can't dwell on one game. If you have a bad game, you've got to put it behind you and keep going."

Tewksbury Memorial High School senior captain Chris Bettano has rushed for almost 1,200 yards and has scored 14 touchdowns this season for the Redmen. (file photo).

Bettano's coach Brian Aylward says that he expects the running back to really define his Tewksbury football legacy over the next two games. The coach admits that he has already been a witness to a pair of the best-ever performances by a Tewksbury High School running back including the 244 yard, three touchdown performance against Andover, and the 267 yard, three touchdown game against Haverhill.

"With the Andover and Haverhill games alone they are two of the best single-game performances that we've ever had," said Aylward. "A lot of his legacy will be defined in the next couple of games, and I think that he understands that. He is focused and ready. He understands the importance of this next outing, and what he's going to do. Chris has been a pleasure to coach. He gives a complete effort every single time that he touches the ball."

And every time he touches that football, Bettano thinks about the stuff that makes a football player special. Thursday morning he will be taking those thoughts to what he hopes is a very memorable level, as his family- dad Edward, mom Denise and brothers Mike (22) and Justin (14) watch their tough and talented sibling hopefully batter the Wildcat defense from sideline-to-sideline, tackle-to-tackle.

"I just have a drive to fight for my team, the town of Tewksbury, my parents, my grandparents. Everybody is an influence on me," he readily and quietly admits. "In my eyes, this is the biggest game of the season. We need to take it to them, pretty much."

Those words pretty much sum-up Bettano's running style. He 'takes it to' opponents on every play. Bettano's motor is running from the opening whistle until he leaves for home after the game. Thursday morning's contest will be the last time that the young man with the big motor and even bigger heart turns the ignition that is often the focal point of the Tewksbury High School football offense. For Chris Bettano, Thursday morning will be a good time to fire up that motor for one last Thanksgiving football game in Tewksbury.

Senior captain remembers Uncle in memorable season

Quarterback has heart, skills the size of Texas

By RICK COOKE
Sports Correspondent

Tom ‘Texas’ Saunders would arrive shortly after supper time and gather Kevin Saunders and his brothers Dan and John around the dining room table. It was time to talk sports, and the former Tewksbury High School basketball and baseball stand-out liked nothing better than to help motivate and encourage Dan Saunders’ sons. Tom had three daughters of his own whom he cherished, but his time with Kevin Saunders, Tewksbury High School’s senior starting quarterback and tri-captain, was always something special.

Sports was always a big part of Tom’s life, and when this life tragically ended just as the Redmen were getting ready for this season, the loss hit the TMHS QB so hard that for a brief moment he lost just a bit of the swagger that has always helped to spark his teammates on both sides of the football. ‘Uncle Tom’ was always supportive of Kevin, his brothers Dan 22, John 16 and their sister Amy, who is now 22-years-old.

Dan and his wife Alice always knew when ‘Texas’ was in the room. There would be that rat-a-tat-tat staccato voice of encouragement. Always look to do your best. Look an opponent in the eye and play like you have lived and learned about life the right way in Tewksbury. There was no better advocate for Tewksbury High School sports than Tom Saunders, and as far back as his Pop Warner running back days, Kevin always knew that he was blessed to have a ring-side seat to a burning fire-side chat about loving all that is Tewksbury.

Dan Saunders is Tom’s first cousin, and the two men grew up on adjacent streets in Tewksbury. Tom graduated from Tewksbury High School in 1978, Dan just two years later in 1980. Both grew up with Tewksbury sports, but it was ‘Texas’ overt, often intense enthusiasm that lit Kevin’s burning desire to succeed.

When Dan’s family grew to include the boys, ‘Texas’ gradually took an interest in just how they were performing in no matter what sport they chose to play.

“Tommy would come into the house and get their full attention,” remembers Dan. “He told Kevin what playing sports was really all about - that it would be fun to be part of and contribute to a team. He was my idol.”

Kevin Saunders has persevered over what has been an up-and-down TMHS football season. A season opening 28-0 loss to Lincoln-Sudbury was followed by impressive wins over Andover, Central Catholic and Dracut- capped by a game and the drive of a football lifetime in a 21-14 upset of Lowell High School at Cawley Stadium. Through it all, the Redmen have made the post-season by winning the Small School Division of the Merrimack Valley Conference, and Saunders has compiled some impressive statistics with 345 yards rushing and six touchdowns to go along with 213 yards passing and two TD passes. He also has been the bulwark of the TMHS’ defense from his position at free safety.

All these statistics together with the wins and losses pale in comparison to the 17-year-old Saunders emotional losses off the football field. In August his grandfather Gene Saunders passed away, and then in October, Alice Saunders’ dad Bill Roper died. The loss of two older mentors was tough, but then ‘Texas’ death was enough to set Kevin back emotionally for the remainder of this football season. Then he recalled just what Tom emphasized in all those post-dinner conversations. Rat-a-tat-tat- listen up Kevin ‘Texas’ is in the room and holding court, and he could hold a crowd’s attention at the drop of a hat.

Tewksbury’s starting quarterback mourned the loss of ‘Texas’ and the team dropped its first two games of the season. Then before the Andover victory, he decided to wear the number ‘4’- Tom’s number- on his wrist band. The number on the QB’s back was switched from his customary ‘8’ to ‘4’. The emotional transformation was just about complete. Life would go on but Kevin Saunders would remember his uncle in a very special way.

“Tommy was a huge inspiration for me and my sports life,” said Saunders before an afternoon practice last week. “He was right in the center of everything for me. He would always come over before the games and give me a pep talk to make sure that I was ready for everything. It’s been tough without him this season. That’s why I wear his number on my wrist. I was number ‘8’ my whole life. After he passed away, I found out that he wore the number ‘4’- so I decided to wear that number for him.”

The room is quiet, but the QB leans forward for emphasis. He remembers those talks after dinner.

“Before every game he would come over after dinner and we would sit at the table and talk. He would talk to me about mental toughness. He didn’t have sons of his own, so he took me and my brothers under his wing. He would talk about the guys that he played with in high school. It seemed like everywhere we would go he would know everybody. He was a big part of my life.”

Kevin tells a story when he made a relief appearance as a sophomore baseball pitcher for Tewksbury High School. ‘Texas’ loved the game of baseball, and after Kevin’s stint on the mound, there was that sound again. Rat-a-tat-tat- it was music to the ears of Kevin Saunders, and that tune was not always necessarily about something that was strictly sports.

“He came over and talked about having a strong sense of family, and that he would do anything for me. He had my back against anything,” says Kevin. “I remember my first start against Methuen in football, when Sean Connolly (TMHS starting QB) went down, and Tom came over all jacked-up. He was chomping at the bit, getting ready to watch that game. He just knew that I was going to do good in that game. I did alright.”

The TMHS fulltime starting quarterback as done more than all right on both sides of the ball this season, and whenever he has been sidelined for any length of time the team has felt his loss, especially defensively, where a Saunders injury can trigger a domino effect on a team not exactly packed with a two or three player depth chart at any position.

“Kevin is a big part of what we do on both sides of the ball,” offered TMHS head coach Brian Aylward. “When you lose a guy like that on defense, you almost have to move two other guys to new positions. Kevin has had a tremendous year at free safety.”

Assistant coach Rob Aylward knows a little something about quarterback play, having earned his TMHS stripes on a memorable 1985 Redmen Super Bowl team. Saunders evolution as a QB was not without some bumps in the road as he made the transition from being a standout tight-end to a more than functional signal-caller.

“He’s actually the kid that we’ve been waiting for to run this offense,” admits the TMHS assistant coach. “He is a runner and a thrower and he can take anything that we throw at him. He’s been great all year long with this stuff and he’s perfect for this system that we have this year. Just imagine him at tight-end. He would have been the all-conference tight-end this year. He’s got great hands, and he’s a good athlete.”

The Redmen often run first and think pass down the road with Saunders showing the ability to drift out of the pocket on occasion to catch one of several ‘gadget’ plays coming out of a versatile TMHS backfield. The most common and team-boosting play from the QB this season has been that head-down leg drive run from tackle to tackle. The ‘Tebow’ effect hasn’t been wasted on Saunders and his offensive line. That style has often worked when all else has failed- and Saunders is the first to say that he likes this style of attack.

“I love it. Running the ball is a lot of fun. I used to be a running back in Pop Warner, and this brings me back to my roots. I love running the ball up the middle and hitting the first guy that I see. Fighting for yards- it’s what it’s all about.”

And that Lowell victory? Was that a blast or what?

“That game was so much fun,” says Saunders. “We played together as a unit and no one was going to stop us on that last drive when we punched it in to take the lead. We were just a driven bunch of kids, all with the same goal.”

What would ‘Texas’ have to say about all of this? Knowing him, probably plenty and with good reason. He is still motivating Kevin Saunders to this day. The injuries are in the past. The Saunders swagger is back. The concussion and the pinched nerve are not really problematic when a young man has motivation coming straight from the heart.

“Tom would tell me that this game is what it’s all about that this is what I’ve been working for my whole high school career. I’ve got my rest in, I’m one-hundred percent and ready to go. I’ve had a few bumps and bruises here and there. It’s all part of the game.”

Senior QB/Safety focused for final battle

Versatile athlete, Ferreira looks to shine

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

It's impossible to tell exactly what will happen when Tewksbury and Wilmington square off in their 78th Annual Thanksgiving Day game on Thursday morning, but one thing that is a definite is that whatever happens, Wilmington High's Matt Ferreira will be in the middle of the action.

Whether he is directing the Wildcats offense as quarterback or back boning the defense from his safety position, Ferreira will be one player the Tewksbury coaching staff will always have to be aware of.

The senior star has thrown for 571 yards and seven touchdowns from his quarterback position, while running for 304 yards and four more scores, and has been equally as dominant at safety with 75 tackles and two interceptions.

Ferreira is obviously supremely talented to have been so successful this season, but Wildcats coach Mike Barry also points to his ability to work hard and do whatever is necessary to help the team.

"Matt is one of those kids you love to coach because he will do anything you need to do," Barry said. "In the past he has been a running back, quarterback and wide receiver for us, and he has always done a great job for us. Whatever you ask him to do, he will do."

What Ferreira wants to do most right this week is bring the Wildcats a victory on Thanksgiving morning against their arch rivals from Tewksbury. In the days leading up to the game, Ferreira was eager to get onto the field for his final high school football game.

"I can't wait. I was thinking during practice the other day that I have never wanted anything more than to win this game so I am very excited," Ferreira said.

Ferreira has been through these games before, having been with the Wildcats for three years now, but being a senior this year's game has even more special meaning.

"Every year it is important, but this year means a lot more than any other year," Ferreira said. "It's my senior year and it is my last game ever, and it is against Tewksbury with a bunch of fans watching. It doesn't get any better."

While Ferreira has been on the field for Thanksgiving

Day games before, this is the first time he will be under center for the Wildcats, having been a wide receiver last season.

Making the switch to quarterback is not an easy transition to make, but Ferreira has made the transition very smoothly, even using his experience as a wide receiver to help him at his quarterback position.

"It has helped me because I learned all of the pass routes and got a better understanding of how the defense works rather than just being under center," Ferreira said.

Ferreira had played some quarterback at the JV level for the Wildcats and had gotten a few snaps near the end of games as a sophomore, but this season represents his first full time as the signal caller and he has taken to the position like a seasoned veteran, getting better with each game has he has led his team to a 6-3 record including four straight wins heading into Thanksgiving.

"Playing wide receiver definitely helped him and he is an extremely coachable kid. He does a great job of learning the game and he has come full circle," Barry said. "He could always run and he has come a long way in the passing game as well. He had a big game against Watertown and has gotten better as the year has gone on."

"He's also got great command in the huddle. You need a quarterback to take charge and he does a great job with that."

Ferreira was also called upon to take charge of the team along with the other seniors, during their most difficult stretch of the season, when they were going through a three game losing streak in the middle of the season.

While not a captain, Ferreira is certainly one of the team leaders as a senior quarterback and during that rough stretch, he was at his best in keeping his team focused to get back on the winning track.

"That was tough. After the second and third loss we were wondering where do we go from here and will we win another game," Ferreira said. "But we all got together and did not blame anyone. We just stayed focused and got through it together."

As much as Ferreira is a leader on offense, he is just as integral a part of the team on defense. While his quarterback play garners much of the attention, his play on defense this year has been outstanding as his 75 tackles will attest.

"He's a really good tackler out of the secondary. He cleans up any mistakes that happen," Barry said. "He has to make those tackles or else we will be giving up big plays."

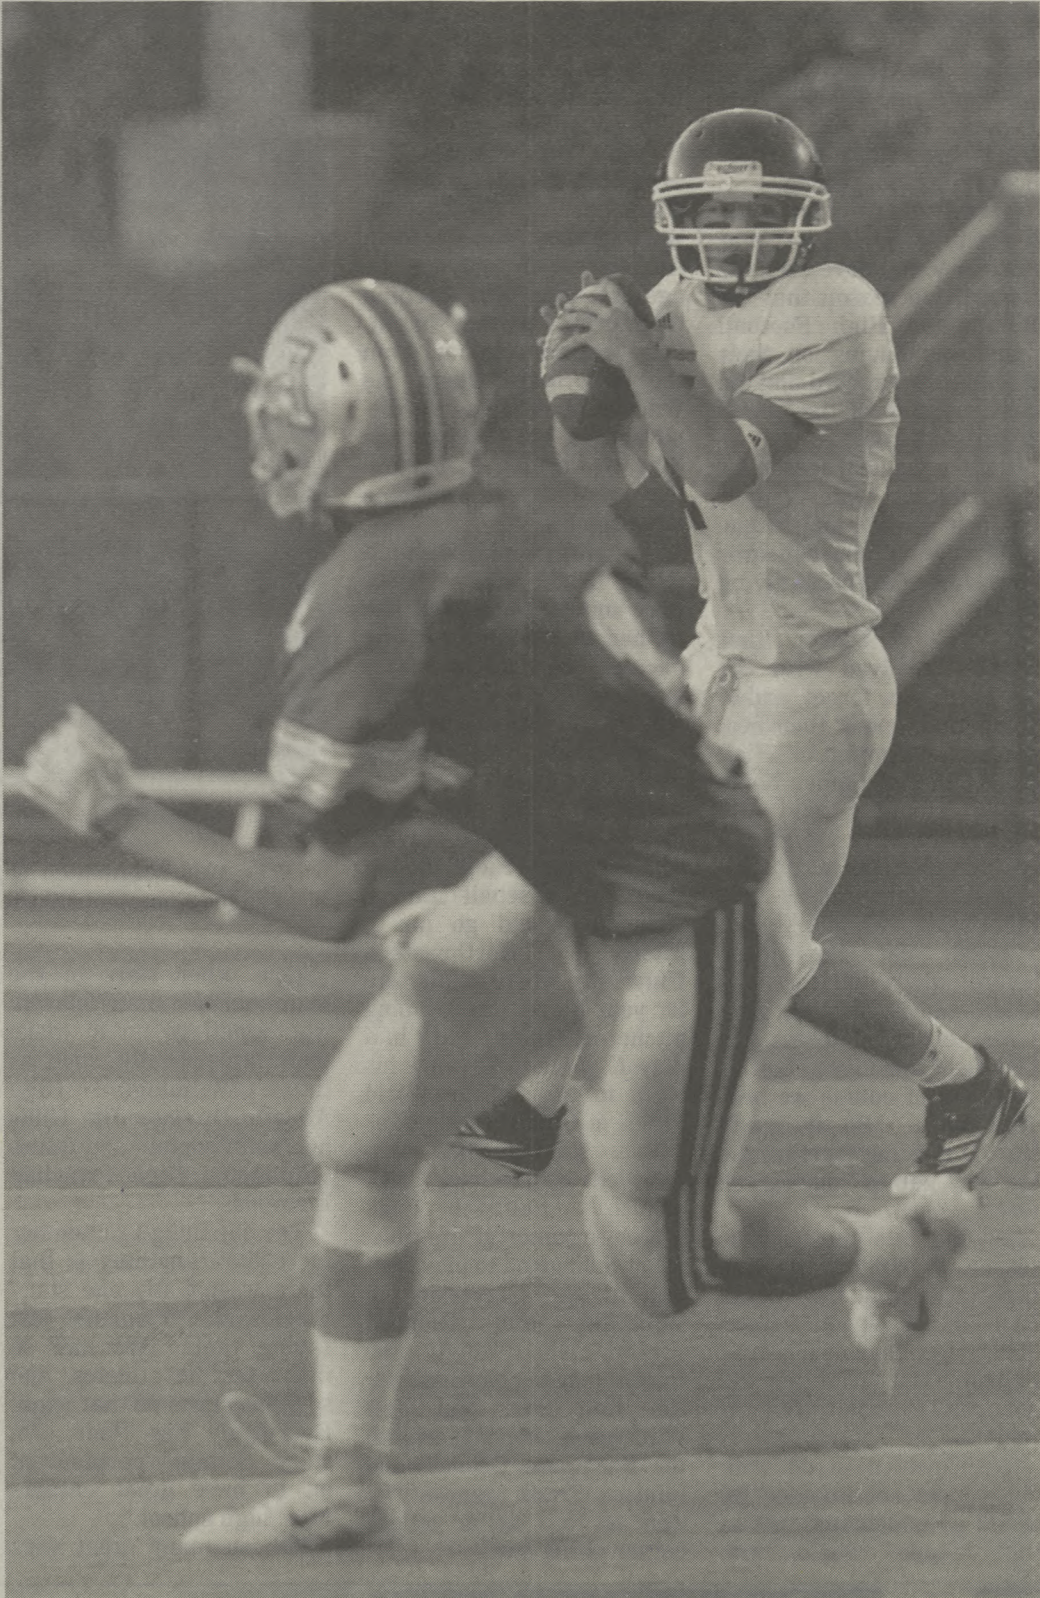

"He also helps us as a senior back there because we have two other juniors in the secondary with him so his leadership is big for us back there."

Ferreira's quarterback play has helped him in his success in the secondary.

"It helps because I know how to read the quarterback," Ferreira said. "I know his body language and where he is going so it helps with my pass coverage in that aspect."

And while there is much more glory in the quarterback position, Ferreira actually prefers to play defense.

"Defense is a nice break," Ferreira said. "I like it because I get to hit the other guy. Obviously I don't get to do that as a quarterback. I get to hit people on defense and that is football."

Ferreira will be playing football and leading his team for the last time on Thanksgiving morning, a fact he is well aware of, but prefers not to think about too much in the days leading up to the game.

"I have tried not to think about it too much because it is kind of sad," Ferreira said. "I have been playing so long I don't want to think about it being over. Right now I am just thinking about getting on the field and playing with my teammates."

It may be his last game,

But Ferreira will not be easily forgotten or easily replaced by the Wildcats next season.

"He will be very hard to replace," Barry said. "All you can hope is that other kids step up. It is not just his running and throwing, it is the consistency he brings day in and day out. You just hope the younger look at him and learn from him because of all the hard work he puts in. He will be missed."

Fifty years later, 1961 Wildcat team still remembered

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The year was 1961. John F. Kennedy was sworn in as President of the United States, the Major League All-Star Game was played at Fenway Park, and Roger Maris hit a then record 61 home runs in a season.

On the local news front, the biggest story of the year may very well have been the remarkable season that the Wilmington High Football team was having on their way to a 9-0-1 record and the championship of the Lowell Suburban League.

It was a magical season for the Wildcats, who wrapped up their season and league title with an 18-6 win over Tewksbury on Thanksgiving Day.

It was a season that nobody involved with the team will ever forget, and 50 years later, one of their best players, Wilmington High School Hall of Famer Kevin Field, a safety, end and punter with the team, looked back on that special time.

"It was a fantastic season," Field said. "We had kind of a rough year (the season before) where we lost some tough games, but we gave some very good teams like Lynnfield some great battles and then of course we beat Tewksbury. So it really started to come together the last few games (during the 1960 season)."

Heading into their senior season the Wildcats had the expectation that they would have a very good season under legendary coach Fred Bellissimo, but even they did not realize how great it would be.

"We expected to do well, but we did not imagine we would go undefeated, not in that league," Field said.

"There were so many tough games. There were no breaks on our schedule. I remember playing Chelmsford and their line averaged 250 pounds. They were all such big kids."

But go undefeated is exactly what the Wildcats did, even while facing the likes of Billerica, Chelmsford, Burlington and North Andover with only a tie against Lynnfield keeping them from a perfect season.

Chelmsford was far from the only team where the Wildcats were at a size disadvantage, but Field recalls that by working as a team they were able to overcome all obstacles.

"We always played as a team," Field said. "There were some games I felt like we had no business winning because the other teams were so big or so talented, but we just refused to lose. It was really just amazing teamwork."

The Wildcats also had quite a few talented players of their own, Field among them. A baseball star as well, he would go on to attend Northeastern University where in his senior year he was the winning pitcher at Fenway Park in a playoff game to advance his team to the College World Series in Omaha, Nebraska.

Other stars of the team included quarterback Dick Allard, halfback Jack Bowen, a junior at the time, who would go on to play football at the University of Wyoming, end Richard Froton, who would play minor league baseball for the Red Sox, end Jeff Williamson, who signed with the Baltimore Orioles, and fullback Frank Munroe who went on to a stellar college career of his own.

The 1961 Wilmington High School Football team is celebrating its 50th anniversary from that Lowell Suburban League Championship season.

Some other stars of the team included many players who would go on to make their fame locally, such as future Wilmington High Athletic Director Jim Gillis and team captain and future Wilmington High Principal Ed Woods.

"The one thing I remember more than anything is that there wasn't any one star," Field said. "I am not just saying that. We had so many terrific athletes, and so many starts on that team. Everybody has their own story. So many people went on to have great careers after high school."

With so many great wins during that magical season, it would be hard to pick just one, but just like players from Wilmington and Tewksbury will be playing the most important game of their careers this Thanksgiving morning, Field says that he and his teammates also looked forward to their Thanksgiving Day matchup more than any other game on their schedule.

"Absolutely, that was the game," Field said. "It did not matter what your record was the rest of the year, all that mattered was if you won on Thanksgiving."

Of course that season, the Wildcats had won many games leading up to the Thanksgiving Day clash in Tewksbury and it is a day that Field remembers vividly, having scored a touchdown in the game, while Frank Munroe led the way with a pair of scores.

"I remember Tewksbury had a great team as well and I think I they beat us they would have won the league," Field said. "I remember we had gotten a snow storm, so the morning of the game they had plowed the field with actual snow plows and trucks, so the field was all muddy and it was very cold. But it was a great game and it was one we will never forget."

Field will not be at this year's game, as he will be working at the Burlington-Lexington game, having been a teacher for many years at Burlington High. But he will be with his close friend and Burlington High Athletic Director Eddie Gillis, who is the brother of his former teammate and Wilmington Athletic Director Jim Gillis.

"I won't be able to make it," Field said. "But I will be thinking of the game and I will be rooting for Wilmington."

M.E. Santa rings his bell!

Salvation Army puts in new twist nationally:

Bell-Ringer World Record Contest

BY JIM HAGGERTY

Like anything else in the world, and especially the business world, a lot of time is spent reinventing oneself!

Take the M.E. Santa, for instance: it didn't exist 23 years ago until the people at Middlesex East invented it.

The principle was a simple one: make the outreach of the newspapers in this area an extension of the red kettles that dot the landscape, shopping malls, busy city streets and areas served by the Salvation Army.

Now, the Salvation Army has come up with a new one: a bell ringing contest! That's right, it's a Guinness Book of Records effort to be started in mid-December to draw attention to the red kettles. A great way to do it.

One can only harken back to 1865 when the Salvation Army's founder, a Methodist minister named William

DOING THE MOST GOOD™

Booth, started the movement. And, in 1887 he reportedly told a secretary during one of the fundraising efforts: "We are a volunteer army! And so it stuck unto today.

The Red Kettle drive actually began in San Francisco in 1897.

The same basic needs of humanity to those less fortunate than most are still there and can be addressed. And, while all of humanities problems can't be resolved in this manner, the ones in one's own backyard like the Middlesex

East area (10 communities) can be addressed and fixed nicely at times like the upcoming holiday period.

The entire effort in these communities in the M.E. region in 2010 was coordinated by Robin Longendyke, a Woburn resident, who admitted she had a "full plate" in 2010 to meet the needs of those less fortunate. And, it was groups like the M.E. Santa who helped come to the rescue as the funds raised here are earmarked and spent locally. Items like food, clothing, housing and heat are just some of the emergency areas addressed by the long arm of the Salvation Army.

The Middlesex East Santa hopes to ring true to so many in the Middlesex East area in this holiday season.

As in the past, the newspapers involved in the Middlesex East publications have rallied together to provide local support for local families through the efforts of the Salvation Army.

The concept, the publishers point out, is a simple one: make M.E. an extension of the red kettle effort seen on urban streets, local shopping malls and the like.

In all, this is the 23rd holiday season the newspapers, their subscribers and others have made the Salvation Army effort a major focal point.

In recent editions the Daily Times Chronicle there was an outreach at Thanksgiving time by way of an envelope looking for donations to help feed the hungry at Thanksgiving e.g. $19.95 feeds five people in a family. "Please

"THE TWILIGHT SAGA: BREAKING DAWN PART 1"

"THE TWILIGHT SAGA: BREAKING DAWN PART 1" is the next-to-last installment in the series. It is bigger and slicker than its predecessors and stars Robert Pattinson and Kristen Stewart, a vampire and a mortal who fall in love.

"THE TWILIGHT SAGA: BREAKING DAWN PART 1"
GRADE: ***

As the next-to-last installment in the successful 'Twilight' franchise, it's hard to separate Breaking Dawn - Part 1 from the teen hormonally-charged hysteria that surrounds it. If you are not a true believer in this undead romance, those that are behind the books and movies don't really care - there are far more in the world that do than don't. Just look at the box office gross of the previous three films.

That's why director Bill Condon gets away with a plot that would never get the green light without an army of fans ready with cash in hand to buy tickets. As is often the case with sequels, Breaking Dawn is bigger and slicker than its predecessors.

Here are the basics, in case you have been slow getting to the party: Breaking Dawn is about a vampire getting married, an implausible conception and a lovesick werewolf. As Bella (Kristen Stewart) and Edward (Robert Pattinson) get serious, their matrimonial and physical union creates an unborn vampire child.

The threat of an infant bloodsucker is apparently enough to re-ignite the werewolf versus vampire feud running between the Quileutes and Cullen lineages. Jacob (Taylor Lautner) is forced to make a tough choice between his pack and his great unrequited love, Bella.

The film handles its PG-13 rating admirably, not shying away from subjects like death, sex, obsession and a truly gross-out childbirth sequence. There are also welcome moments of humor, which are subtle and of the inside joke, wink-wink, nod-nod variety.

As an adaptation, it's faithful to the book. Kristen Stewart delivers her best Bella yet, believable as a nervous bride, emotion playing across her face as she walks down the aisle. A jittery newlywed on her wedding night. A malnourished expectant mom, wasting away.

As with the last "Harry Potter" book, filmmakers divided the 754-page fourth and final "Twilight" novel into two movies, to be released a year apart.

This is the first "Twilight" film that doesn't feel like a Lifetime film.

"TOWER HEIST"
GRADE: ***

"Tower Heist" is a comedy that will generate laughs with anyone who has lost money recently invested in a pension fund, life savings or retirement package - in other words, there's something for everyone in this very entertaining film.

The movie focuses on a group of employees who work at a luxury apartment high-rise called "The Tower." They seek some payback after the billionaire investor who lives in the top-floor penthouse is arrested for fraud for swindling millions from investors (a la Bernie Madoff), including the staff of the Tower.

Ben Stiller plays the Tower's manager, who leads this crew of fools, playing the brains of the outfit who devises the heist, but knows nothing about how to pull it off.

He recruits Eddie Murphy, a boyhood acquaintance and petty crook, to bring some much-needed expertise to the caper. Murphy's character will remind you of the role he played in '48 Hours' with Nick Nolte.

Others in this gang include Matthew Broderick as a former Wall Street broker who went belly-up and Casey Affleck as Stiller's inept brother-in-law.

Their plan is to steal $20 million that the swindler, Alan Alda, supposedly has hidden in his penthouse.

The plan involves a rooftop swimming pool, a car supposedly once owned by acting legend Steve McQueen and the Thanksgiving Day parade.

You'll have to see the movie to learn how all these pieces of the puzzle fit together.

All the actors work well as an ensemble. Everyone portrays characters similar to those they have played in other movies, but the familiarity this generates doesn't detract from the fun.

It's good to see Murphy acting for grownups again, after so many years of appearing as the voice of animated characters in kiddie flicks. Alda remains a very good actor, and the film offers a nice comeback role for Matthew Broderick, who is finally onscreen again in what looks to be a hit film.

"Tower Heist" is a fluff film, a date night flick that offers 100 minutes of laughs and enjoyment, while also giving you an excuse to think about how you would get back at someone who has done you wrong over the years.

"PUSS IN BOOTS"
GRADE: ***

"Puss in Boots" is easily one of the most refreshing sequels (it's actually more of a spinoff) to come out of Hollywood in years.

Instead of nonstop zany and zippy one-liners, director Chris Miller ("Shrek the Third") slows the tempo down and concentrates on telling a tale that both kids and adults will enjoy, and hums along with wit and first-rate animation, all the while offering a moral lesson.

Antonio Banderas returns as the suave and vain feline Puss, who first appeared in DreamWorks "Shrek 2," and in "Puss," Banderas has a vehicle all to his own to star in, and has a great time proving why he's one of the coolest cats on-screen.

Whether he's rolling his r's in voice-overs or manipulating a prison guard with his sad-kitty eyes, he makes Puss a funny and endearing creature. Equally responsible for bringing Puss to life is the amazing animation team.

To get back in the good graces of his fellow villagers, Puss reunites with his former partner Humpty Dumpty (played by Zach Galifianakis of 'The Hangover' 1 and 2), an egg with a bad past. Humpty cracks a plan that involves stealing magic beans from the foul-tempered Jack (Billy Bob Thornton) and Jill (Amy Sedaris) so he can grow a beanstalk of fabled lore.

Helping Humpty is Kitty Softpaws (Salma Hayek), a nimble cat-babe who is not only Puss' match on the dance floor, but also in tangling with the bad guys.

Where the Shrek franchise had become bogged down with pop culture gags and showbiz inside jokes, Puss looks poised to carry on with more films in the future, ready to pounce on the audience created by everyone's favorite ogre.

COMING UP IN DECEMBER IN STONEHAM

Everyone in Stoneham: best behavior, please.

"Dr. Les Olson, Superintendent of the Stoneham Public Schools, was informed by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education of an upcoming Coordinated Program Review that will be taking place this school year," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"As part of this Coordinated Program Review, Department staff will visit the district during the week of December 12-16. Such visits are routinely conducted by the Department to satisfy federal and state requirements for the periodic review of specific education programs and services in schools throughout the Commonwealth. The Department is reviewing several programs during a single visit in order to use Department and school staff's time most efficiently and to encourage strong connections among the programs.

"The Department's Coordinated Program Review will address the following programs: Special Education, Civil Rights and English Learner Education. After reviewing school district procedures for these programs, a Department team will make its onsite visit, during which it will review individual student records, interview administrators, teachers and paraprofessional staff, survey parents and observe instructional spaces. After the onsite visit it will prepare a report for the superintendent and school committee, with detailed findings for each program.

"Using a scale of ratings ranging from 'Commendable' to 'Not Implemented,' the report will rate the implementation of each requirement reviewed by the Department. Where requirements are found not implemented or only partially implemented, the district must propose to the Department corrective action to bring those areas into compliance with statutes and regulations. Districts and schools are encouraged to incorporate the corrective action into their district and school improvement plans and professional development plan. The school district will be provided with technical assistance from the Department in developing a corrective action plan. Both the Department's report and the corrective action plan are public information and will be available to the public upon request. Program Review Final Reports are also available on the Department's Internet website...."

Any member of the public had the opportunity to request a telephone interview conducted by a member of the Department's visiting team...."

IT TAKES A NEIGHBORHOOD IN TEWKSBURY

"Fifteen people attended the second neighborhood meeting held at the Town Hall ...," notes the Tewksbury "Town Crier."

"The purpose of the meetings, said Town Manager Richard Montuori, was to allow residents to meet department heads. Residents, then, could be made aware of town business and news.

"Panel members included Fire Department Chief Michael Hazel, Police Chief Timothy Sheehan, Town Clerk Denise Graffeo, Community Development Director Steve Sadwick, Superintendent of Public Works Brian Gilbert, and Montuori.

"During his presentation, Montuori noted that, though budgets were tight, excellent services were still provided to the town. He also discussed his optimism for the upcoming fiscal year stating that Tewksbury will be in better financial shape...
"...All present acclaimed the pleasant working relationship between departments...."

HIGHLY ACCOMPLISHED IN WINCHESTER

"Accomplishment was a key note of the reports delivered at Town Meeting this fall, though, as always, the town economy was also an important theme," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Leading off, Patty Clewley of the Finance Committee said that the three-year plan, which has a maintenance of service approach, indicates a widening gap between revenues and expenses growing to $3.2 million in FY2015. If used to fund the difference, Free Cash will be drained in two years.

"Options to reduce the gap include reducing expenses through increased efficiency or cut services or increasing revenue through local receipts or real estate taxes by means of an override...."

"...With phase 1 of the Master Plan completed, the board started work on Phase 2 this October. Sections included transportation, open space and recreation, and cultural resources. This, he said, they hope will be completed later this year or next year."

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

They started life in the NHL in the 1974-75 season as the Kansas City Scouts, where they played for two seasons. Beginning in the 1982-83 season to the present day, this franchise is known as the New Jersey Devils. What was the city and nickname of this hockey franchise in between?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Senior Kayla Littig (Carver, Mass.) and junior Sarah Wilcox (Old Town, Maine) headline a class of four River Hawks named Longstreth Division II All-Americans on Tuesday afternoon by the National Field Hockey Coaches Association. Littig and Wilcox were placed on the First Team, while senior Annie Hansbury (Plaistow, N.H.) and SOPHOMORE RACHEL MCCARTHY (READING, MASS.) were each named to the Second Team.

Already crowned the Northeast-10 Defensive Player of the Year and Tournament MVP, Littig has established herself as a lockdown defender with an explosive scoring touch. A member of the NE-10 and NCAA All-Tournament Teams, she scored a career-high 26 points on 12 goals and two assists.

Among her season highlights, Littig scored twice on "Senior Day" against American International on Oct. 22 for her first career multi-goal game and carried a five-game goal streak from Sept. 23 to Oct. 4.

Joining Littig on the First Team, Wilcox played defense at an elite level in 2011 and emerged as a key member of UMass Lowell's offense.

A NE-10 All-Conference Second Team selection, Wilcox submitted a personal best 16 points with five goals and six assists. The bulk of her production came in the playoffs, where she was named to the NE-10 and NCAA All-Tournament Teams while scoring eight points (2g, 4a) in five postseason games.

Wilcox and Littig anchored a defense that allowed just 1.15 goals and 7.26 penalty corners per game.

Hansbury earns All-American Second Team honors for the second consecutive season, despite missing 10 games due to injury. With unparalleled field vision, she led the NE-10 with eight assists through 10 games before incurring the injury, and still finished the year tied for fifth overall.

Her impact on the game didn't go unnoticed as Hansbury was selected to the NE-10 All-Conference First Team as well.

McCarthy made her debut on All-American Second Team after submitting a dominating offensive campaign. A NE-10 All-Conference First Team member as well, she was among the league leader in nearly every offensive category: ranking first in points (56) and assists (18), and second in goals (19) and game-winning goals (4).

Following up her breakout NE-10 All-Rookie season in 2010, McCarthy was named to the NCAA All-Tournament Team after helping lead the River Hawks to the brink of a second consecutive National Championship.

•SENIORS HANNAH MERULLO (WAKEFIELD, MASS.) and Maddy Bissaillon (Merrimac, Mass.) were named to the Capital One Academic All-District 1 Teams, voted upon and announced recently by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

Merullo, who has maintained a 3.92 grade point average in criminal justice, was named to the All-Academic First Team while Bissaillon, an exercise physiology major with a 3.54, was cited to the Second Team.

Merullo and the other First Team recipients are eligible for Capital One Academic All-America honors, to be announced later this month. The Capital One Academic All-America program honors student-athletes - sophomores and older - who have maintained at least a 3.30 cumulative average and have played in at least 50 percent of the team's 2011 matches.

Merullo and Bissaillon have been integral players in UMass Lowell's success this season. The River Hawks (11-5-2, 10-3-2 in the Northeast-10 Conference), who placed third in the NE-10, earned the No. 4 seed in the NCAA Tournament East Regional and will face No. 5 Dowling (13-5-2) Friday (1:00) at the host/No. 1 seed University of Bridgeport.

Merullo, who was named to the NE-10 All-Conference Second Team last week, has led a back line which has compiled eight shutouts and maintained a 0.75 goals against average, both of which rank fourth in the NE-10.

Merullo has also added a bit of offense this season with two goals - five minutes apart - in UMass Lowell's pivotal 3-1 victory over Southern Connecticut.

Bissaillon, who made her second appearance on the NE-10 All-Conference First Team, has been among the unsung players in the squad. With two goals and six assists, she ranks seventh among NE-10 assist leaders and notched goals in wins at Southern New Hampshire (2-0) and Saint Michael's (2-0).

Merullo and Bissaillon were among 14 NE-10 players cited to the Capital One All-Academic Teams.

•Need some help with the trivia question? The initials are C.R.

•UMass Lowell's bid to repeat as National Champions was carried to the wire, but the River Hawks came up short in a 2-1 loss to West Chester in Bloomsburg, PA.

The Golden Rams (17-4), who moved down from Division I to Division II this season, win their first NCAA Field Hockey Championship. The River Hawks finish their amazing season at 19-4, highlighted by their sixth NCAA Finals appearance in seven years.

"These are the worst kind of losses because we had a lot of opportunities that we just didn't finish on," said head coach Shannon Hlebichuk. "And I think that was the difference in the game."

"There was the expectation that it would be a slight rebuilding year, but clearly as the season went on, we just kept getting better and I'm proud of this team for what they've accomplished," added Hlebichuk.

The Golden Rams got on the board first, scoring in the sixth minute. Nicole Fiorilla (Downingtown, Pa.) scored her team-leading 13th tally, converting on a cross from Kayla Gluchowski (Mountaintop, Pa.).

West Chester expanded the lead to two goals in the 15th minute on a penalty corner. Brynn Adams (Lititz, Pa.) launched a shot through the defense and beat goalkeeper Melanie Hopkins (Harwich, Mass.) stick-side.

UMass Lowell nearly got on the board with seven minutes remaining in the first half. Melissa Effertz (Oceanside, Calif.) slipped behind the defense on a long pass and raced the goalkeeper to the loose ball, but their sticks collided to break up the play.

The River Hawks breathed new life into the match late in the second half, scoring on a penalty corner in the 56th minute.

RACHEL MCCARTHY (READING, MASS.) delivered the ball to Sarah Wilcox (Old Town, Maine) on the perimeter and she dishd to Ali Ferraro (Kingston, N.Y.) in the middle for a blast into the net, slashing the score to 2-1.

UMass Lowell nearly knotted the game up with just over five minutes remaining. West Chester turned away a penalty corner, making saves on shots by McCarthy and Effertz.

The Golden Rams milked the clock down in the closing moments with a pair of penalty corners, preventing the River Hawks from mounting an offensive stand.

ME Santa

clubs have enthusiastically volunteered their efforts to man these stations in the days preceding Christmas.

Gof for it...

Bell-ringer volunteers are always welcomed by the Salvation Army. But in a new twist, the Salvation Army's USA National Headquarters made available the rules for the first ever national Salvation Army Red-Kettle Bell-Ringer World Record Contest. The event is to begin on Thursday, December 15 at 12:00 noon (EST) and will end when the last participant rings the bell for the last time.

The goal of the nationwide event is to set a new world record for the longest continuous hand bell ringing by an individual.

The Community Relations and Development (NCRD) section announced the rules for participation in the 2011 Salvation Army bell-ringing world-record contest.

All contestants will begin at the same exact time, regardless of time zone.

Participants will volunteer to ring a bell at a Red Kettle stand for as long as they can. The contest will take place at multiple Red Kettle locations—to be determined by local Salvation Army personnel—across the country.

The contest is open to all current and retired Salvation Army officers and Salvation Army staff on a voluntary basis. Volunteer Salvation Army bell-ringers, including church or other civic groups may also participate. Each participant in the contest must ring a bell individually.

The official rules* of the event include:

1. Participants must stand the entire time

2. Participants may not eat

3. Participants may drink hydration products only such as water, Gatorade or juice. Other drinks such as protein shakes are not allowed

4. Participants must ring a bell at all times

5. Participants may use a bathroom (Once every four hours, 10 minutes per break)

6. Participants may not take any other breaks (Please note that accommodations can be made for persons valid medical concerns (mobility issues, diabetes, etc.)

By entering, participating officers, staff and volunteers agree to participate in public relations efforts to support the Red Kettle Campaign.

In addition to filling out the entrance form and professional or personal biographical information, participants should submit a photo or photos of themselves to mediarelations@usn.salvationarmyusa.org.

All entrants must register by 5 PM (EST) on Friday, December 2, 2011.

*Complete rules along with all the fine print can be found at the link for the registration form. All information provided in the form, available online on SurveyMonkey.com, at <http://www.surveymonkey.com/s/8ZV8LGQ>, may be used, in whole or in part, by The Salvation Army.

About the Red Kettle Campaign

From its origins as a fundraiser started by a Salvation Army captain in San Francisco in 1891, the Red Kettle Campaign has grown into one of the most recognizable and important charitable campaigns in the United States. As part of the campaign, more than 25,000 Salvation Army volunteers spread throughout the country to ring bells daily and solicit spare change donations to the iconic red kettles from holiday shoppers. In 2010, despite the continued economic recession, U.S. donors contributed a record-breaking $139 million in nickels, dimes, quarters and dollars (and the occasional diamond ring or gold tooth), all collected and used to help people in the communities where they were raised. Last year, the funds helped The Salvation Army provide food, clothing, toys and other assistance to nearly 30 million Americans in need. In addition to physical kettles, donors can also contribute online at www.salvationarmyusa.org or through a virtual red kettle on any number of corporate or individual websites and Facebook pages.

Dr. John McHale reminds patients A comprehensive eye exam can detect diabetes

Diabetes is becoming an epidemic because of the obesity crisis in the United States. In fact, 17 million Americans suffer from diabetes. Of these people, one-third are unaware that they have the disease.

With a dilated, comprehensive eye examination, an optometrist can detect and diagnose diabetes and start you on the road to treatment for the disease. Optometrist Dr. John McHale with Ideal Eye Care in Reading reminds you to consider having a comprehensive eye examination as part of National Diabetes Month this November.

"Through a comprehensive dilated eye exam, I can look inside the eye and examine blood vessels directly, detecting signs and symptoms of vascular diseases such as diabetes and hypertension," said Dr. McHale.

Undiagnosed, diabetes can result in vision impairment, a frequent complication of both Type-1 and Type-2 diabetes, and blindness. Diabetes is the leading cause of new cases of blindness among adults 20-74 years old. Other vision problems caused by diabetes include: vision changes, glaucoma, cataracts and retinopathy.

Part of living with diabetes and successful eye care is having a dilated eye examination on at least an annual basis - more often if you have existing eye issues or more serious retinopathy. Certainly, if you experience any change in vision, you should immediately see your optometrist.

"For someone who has been diagnosed with diabetes, the annual dilated exam is important. When I do an examination, I'm looking at the retina for early signs of diabetic retinopathy, such as leaking blood vessels, retinal swelling (macular edema) and deposits on the retina - all of which are signs of leaking or damaged blood vessels," said Dr. McHale.

An optometrist is an important member of your health care team - particularly if you have been diagnosed with diabetes. Type-2 diabetes is associated with older age, obesity, family history of diabetes, medical history of gestational diabetes, impaired glucose tolerance, physical inactivity and race/ethnicity. The rising incidence of diabetes in the United States is a result of a dramatic increase in obesity, as well as the aging of the population. If you have risk factors associated with diabetes, consider having a dilated eye examination to control the disease and lower the risk of complications.

Dr. McHale has provided patient care for 30 years and welcomes new and established patients to his new full service eye clinic at 315 Main Street in Reading.

The American Optometric Association, founded in 1898, represents more than 34,000 doctors of optometry, optometry students and paraoptometric assistants and technicians in more than 7,000 communities across the country. Optometrists examine, diagnose, treat and manage diseases and disorders of the visual system, the eye and associated structures as well as diagnose related systemic conditions.

Recipe Origins of a holiday staple - Eggnog

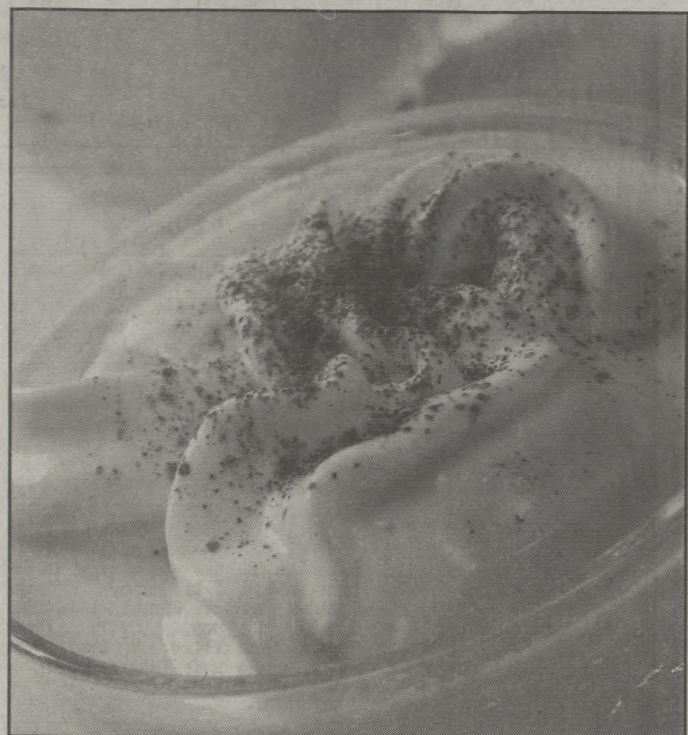

The thick, spiced drink we know as eggnog has become synonymous with the holidays. It is so linked with the Christmas season that a person may be hard-pressed to find it sold in the supermarket any other time of the year. But eggnog wasn't always the holiday beverage it has become.

Eggnog is believed to have originated in 17th century Europe, primarily as a drink for the elite, since the ingredients in the beverage were hard to come by and thusly relegated to the very rich.

There are different theories on the origins of the word eggnog itself. Some believe it has gotten its name from the Old English word "nog," which meant "strong beer." The "egg" refers to one of the ingredients in the beverage, fresh eggs. Others surmise that it comes from the word "noggin," which was a vessel for serving drinks in taverns. The drink was called "egg in a noggin," which was shortened to "eggnog." Still, there are others who say its name is derived from the term "grog," which was another term for booze. "Egg n' grog" was eventually abbreviated to "eggnog."

Although there is little certainty to the origins of the name, the recipe for eggnog has essentially remained unchanged throughout the centuries. It consists of beaten eggs, cream or milk and sugar mixed with some sort of alcoholic spirit. The Old English were believed to mix it with wine, though once the drink was brought to the New World, colonists substituted rum for the wine. Rum was readily available through tradesman running between the Americas and the Caribbean and therefore less expensive than another spirit. As America grew and eggnog was enjoyed in different parts of the country, the rum was replaced with regional spirits, including bourbon or grain alcohol. Other ingredients were also added to give it a customized flavor. However, the use of nutmeg, cinnamon and cloves has become traditional flavors for the holiday brew.

Although eggnog is widely enjoyed throughout the holiday season, in the past it was served at special events and social occasions. As a warmed beverage it can easily chase away winter's chill. This is how it may have come to be enjoyed primarily during the holidays.

Love it or hate it, eggnog is a drink that can evoke strong feelings of the holidays within minutes. There are variations of eggnog sold commercially, but many people swear by homemade versions for their taste and authenticity. Try your own homemade eggnog with this recipe, courtesy of Cooks.com.

Holiday Eggnog (Spirited)

- 1 dozen eggs
- 1 pound powdered sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup vanilla
- 8 cups evaporated milk
- 3 cups water
- 1 quart spiced rum
- Nutmeg, to garnish

Beat eggs until light in color, gradually add sugar, salt and vanilla. Then add milk and water. Stir in rum (brandy, bourbon or rye may also be used). Cover the nog and ripen for 24 hours in the refrigerator. Stir again and serve sprinkled with nutmeg.

The history of cardiopulmonary resuscitation

The history of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation dates all the way back to 1740. Back then, the Paris Academy of Sciences officially recommended mouth-to-mouth resuscitation for drowning victims. However, CPR as we know it today involves more than just mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Chest compressions are now an important part of performing CPR, but it was not until 1891 that Dr. Friedrich Maass performed the first documented chest compression in humans.

What's more, the first successful use of external chest compressions in human resuscitation did not occur until 1903. Even then, it was not until more than half a century later that CPR was developed. In 1960, the American Heart Association began a program to acquaint physicians with close-chest cardiac resuscitation. Three years later, after cardiologist Leonard Scherlis started the American Heart Association's CPRCommittee, the association formally endorsed CPR as a means to saving lives. Nowadays, the American Heart Association reports that effective bystander CPR, when provided immediately after sudden cardiac arrest, can double or triple a victim's chance of survival.

Home From S-8

grade of materials that caught our eye. For condos, superior sound-proofing is number one in my book, and we've got it. It's also an ideal location for those commuting to Boston."

This upscale, state-of-the-art, elevator building offers charming crown moldings throughout the units and hallways. The one and two bedroom condos boast stunning granite countertops and stainless steel appliances in the kitchens. All appliances, including washer and dryers are included, as laundry in-unit seems to be an absolute necessity for those downsizing from a former single family. Need a break? The lush rooftop deck provides a great daytime or evening getaway, with numerous outdoor tables surrounded by flowers and vegetation, and a panoramic view of Stonham.

All units are a little different in configuration but offer both contemporary and classic traditional floorplans. They offer spacious rooms, exquisite moldings and some units can still be customized by choosing your own colors or hardwood floors. The high ceilings, most with recessed lighting, over a "loft-like" feel to some of the units.

The former factory required hundreds of oversized windows to keep a cool breeze on their workers and ...no more stairs. Master suites are located on same floor as living space.

machinery. All units now, of course, have central air and the new Harvey tilt-n-clean windows bring in lots of natural sunlight.

These units are perfect for all, including downsizers who want the maintenance-free lifestyle now. This location gives them the opportunity to be close to Boston, yet walking distance to shops, Stoneham Library, the area's fab-ulous restaurants, such as Melissa's Bistro and Felicia's of the North-End.

Those looking for a maintenance-free lifestyle will enjoy watching someone else doing the snow removal, cleaning the gutters and landscaping. Fanciful brick walk-ways, flanked by granite and bordered by beautiful flowering perennials create an inviting "welcome home". The one bedroom units are offered in the mid $200s and the two bedroom/two full bath units range from $309,900 to $349,900.

The units are all extremely energy efficient and the soundproofing system is something phenomenal. The project is being marketed by Judy McCoy and Ali McCoy of Coldwell Banker. They can be reached at 978-337-2040 for a seven unit tour, for Open House information or private appointment.
